

Many Veterans In Psychiatric Hospitals Rarely See A Psychiatrist

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the network of Veterans Administration psychiatric hospitals across the country, thousands of patients pass their days rarely seeing a psychiatrist.

Many of the wards are totally without air conditioning, even in the Deep South. Most need painting and better lighting. But more, they need professional medical personnel to reinforce overworked, undermanned hospital staffs fighting an uphill battle to care for the nation's mentally ill veterans.

"That's terrible," said one hospital director, "but that's the way it is."

The situation is most acute in those hospitals in small towns and rural areas that offer little to attract professionals from private practice in metropolitan areas. Partly because of public resistance to locating mental hospitals in populous cities, two-thirds of the 35 psychiatric hospitals in the VA system are in outlying areas.

An Associated Press study of VA psychiatric hospitals disclosed that:

—The VA is operating a 1,335-bed psychiatric hospital at Marion, Ind., without a single fulltime psychiatrist. Despite intensive recruiting, only four or five psychiatrists have appeared for interviews and none was interested in living in Marion or on the $29,000 salary.

—In the 1,555-bed hospital at Coatesville, Pa., there are seven psychiatrists. One is the hospital director; another is the chief of staff. Neither is involved directly in patient care. Three others work part-time.

—Where psychiatrists are short, psychiatric work often is taken on by psychologists and social workers. The VA's chief medical director, Dr. Marc J. Musser, said in an interview that VA studies show that non-medical personnel do a good job filling in. They are, however, neither trained nor licensed to diagnose patients or prescribe medication.

—The hospitals, even those with relatively large psychiatric staffs, are critically short of registered nurses. In the 1,000-bed psychiatric facility at Augusta, Ga., for example, there are 12 fulltime psychiatrists, but only one night nurse for 168 beds in four wards.

While the VA's professional staff problems are most acute at psychiatric hospitals, its general medical and surgical facilities also have difficulty attracting qualified medical personnel.

According to statistics published earlier this year by the House Veterans Affairs Committee, only 16 of the 166 VA psychiatric and general hospitals met the agency's own minimum standards for staffing. The VA's standard is a one-to-one ratio of staff to patients in psychiatric hospitals; two-to-one in general facilities. In setting the standard the VA defines staff as doctors, nurses, nurses' aides, therapists, dietitians, laboratory technicians and dental technicians.

Since the House Committee figures were published, the VA has hired 8,000 new staff including, according to VA Administrator Donald E. Johnson, 400 doctors and 2,200 nurses. Nonetheless, acute shortages remain.

At Marion three buildings housing 214 patients are covered by a single registered nurse on the midnight to 8 a.m. shift. At Coatesville, there are two nurses for every 150 patients during the day; one at night.

Even if the VA were to meet its standards, the staff-to-patient ratios would fall short of the ratios generally found in other hospitals.

Compared to the VA's standard of 1.5 community hospitals average 2.7 staff to each patient, and university hospitals run close to 3.5.

An attempt to alleviate the situation is being made through a program of hospitalization. Instead of having six or seven hospitals in an area providing all types of medical services, the VA hospitals are specializing.

The VA's recruiting problem is complicated by a regulation prohibiting fulltime VA doctors from conducting private practices, a regulation bent only when there is an overwhelming community demand for the

Hirohito Greeted By Dazzling Pageantry

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II told Japan's Emperor Hirohito "we cannot pretend that the past did not exist" at the end of a majestic welcome Tuesday that mixed dazzling pageantry and some hostile echoes of World War II. As Britain's royal family rolled out a red carpet for Hirohito's three-day state visit, a few Japanese spectators booed and a Briton threw his coat toward the Japanese monarch's state carriage, but no major incidents marred the splendor.

The queen mentioned the bitter memory of war once in her toast to the visiting emperor at a state banquet in Buckingham Palace Tuesday night.

"We cannot pretend that the past did not exist," she said. "We cannot pretend that the relations between our two peoples have always been peaceful and friendly. However, it is precisely this experience which should make us all the more determined never to let it happen again."

She underscored her remarks by saying that since the end of the war the emperor has made it "only too obvious that you are dedicated to peace and friendship."

Hirohito, the first Japanese ruler to leave his island while on the throne, made no reference to the war in his reciprocal toast.

He was carried to Buckingham Palace with the queen in a gold-trimmed coach, accompanied by mounted soldiers in silver breastplates and plumed helmets. A 41-gun salute thundered over London as they rolled down the street.

The little emperor, dressed in morning clothes and a black coat with a top hat in his hand, watched it all silently, occasionally nodding his head or waving a hand to the crowds, but saying not a word.

For Hirohito, 70, it was a sort of homecoming. Fifty years ago as a young prince he visited London—65 days from Tokyo aboard a warship—where he acquired a lifelong taste for bacon and eggs. He said later those were "the happiest days of my life."

But to many British war veterans, the emperor's visit was what one ex-soldier called "an affront to the memory of those who died so horribly at the hands of his troops" in Japanese prison camps.

Enemy Troops Withdraw After Suffering Heavy Losses

SAIGON (AP) — North Vietnamese forces have withdrawn from the Cambodian border battle area after suffering heavy losses in their 10-day offensive, the South Vietnamese commander of the campaign said Tuesday.

"We plan to pursue them," declared Lt. Gen. Nguyen Van Minh. "We are going after them with heavy air attacks and other offensive operations."

Minh said the North Vietnamese lost 450 men killed in their campaign on the Cambodian-Vietnam frontier.

He told Associated Press correspondent George Esper at his headquarters in Tay Ninh that South Vietnamese casualties in the border fighting were 41

Senate Votes Down Funds For Major Missile Systems

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Tuesday rejected three proposals to add funds for major U.S. offensive-missile systems after Sen. John C. Stennis cautioned against doing anything to jeopardize chances for a U.S.-Soviet arms-limitation agreement.

It voted down also a proposal to stop U.S. air attacks in Indochina as it neared final passage, scheduled Wednesday afternoon, of a $21-billion military procurement authorization bill.

Stennis, a Mississippi Democrat and chairman of the Armed Services Committee, led the opposition to added missile funds proposed by Sen. James L. Buckley, Con-R-N.Y., and backed by conservatives from both parties. Stennis said they would be interpreted, rightly or wrongly, as a U.S. bid for a first-strike nuclear capability.

Their approval could upset chances of an agreement at the Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT), Stennis said. He added that in any case President Nixon wouldn't spend any of the funds "at least until the last lingering hope of success for the SALT talks ... is gone."

Buckley termed the argument by Stennis "something of a red herring" and contended his amendments were designed to give the United States the option of making improvements in the quality of its strategic forces.

In quick succession, the Senate voted:

—66 to 17 against his proposal to add $5 million for long-range studies to modernize the land-based Minuteman missiles and increase their range;

—By voice vote against adding $12 million to achieve a 40 per cent improvement in Minuteman accuracy;

—68 to 12 against his amendment to add $25 million for a similar improvement in the sea-based, multiwarhead Poseidon missiles.

In the day's only other vote, the Senate rejected, 64 to 19, an amendment by Sen. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, to bar U.S. air attacks throughout Indochina and Thailand with the option for the President to continue air attacks in South Vietnam if needed to protect withdrawing U.S. troops.

"I don't understand why we're bombing all over Indochina if we're getting out," Gravel told a virtually deserted Senate chamber.

Stennis said "You've got to do something to keep them on the defensive as much as possible."

WARREN'S ACTION PLAN—Part I

Few People Understand Its Scope

By PAUL REICHAUT

In the past few days—ever since the Sept. 27 adjourned meeting of Warren Borough Council—there's been considerable clamor throughout the community about a proposed planning effort we loosely term "the Action Plan."

Many opinions have been voiced by councilmen, quasi-public officials and plain old men-on-the-street as to whether or not the borough should have adopted the multi-faceted proposal.

Here at the paper we've received letters both condoning and condemning council's action of defeating the plan.

In the last analysis, though, very few people actually understand the scope of the proposal. As Councilman Rockwell O'Sheill, an ardent advocate of the plan, has said—"this is more than just another traffic study."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Men classified as 1A in this year's draft pool won't be called if their lottery numbers are over 125, but all with numbers below that can expect a summons, Selective Service announced Tuesday.

Earlier, draft officials had said men probably would be called with numbers as high as 140. But that was when 15,000 to 20,000, instead of 10,000, were expected to be drafted in the remaining months of this year.

Draft Director Curtis W. Tarr, in another change, said draftees will be given 30 days' notice to report for induction rather than the 10 days' minimum set down in law.

The 30-day notice means that nobody will be drafted this month. But the Pentagon's 10,000-man call will be split 6,500 between Nov. 1 and 18 and 3,500 between Nov. 29 and Dec. 9.

When the draft was suspended on June 30 there had been calls totaling 88,000 for the year, with 84,000 men called. Selective Service said it does not plan to make up the 4,000-man backlog.

Tarr, in another announcement, said he has ordered local and appeals boards to defer action on classification, personal appearances and appeals until new regulations on draft requirements provisions under the new draft law are drawn up.

The regulations will be completed in about two weeks, draft officials said, but they can't be put into effect until the new law until 30 days after they are published in the Federal Register.

Every young man classified 1A who drew a number 125 or lower in the 1969 and 1970 lotteries and is in this year's pool can expect to receive an induction notice in the near future, Tarr said.

That's because of the new system of drafting men on a national basis by lottery number. Previously, Selective Service headquarters set a ceiling by lottery number and assigned states quotas of draftees.

Those to be called this year will, as indicated earlier, be mainly men who lost deferments because they graduated from college, junior college or trade school in June or later.

They were not called earlier because draft calls were suspended between the time the draft authority expired June 30 and President Nixon signed the new draft law last week.

Tarr noted that some of those in this year's pool will be called in January, February and March next year because of the extended liability provisions of the regulations.

Because nobody with a number higher than 125 is to be drafted, Selective Service is halting the ordering of physical and mental exams for men with numbers up to 140.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Air Force is fighting the battle of the bulging waistline among its ground crews in Britain.

One target is fish and chips. Chunks of fried cod nesting in french fries are banned at two of the six big U.S. bases—Lakenheath and Mildenhall. Nearby fish and chip shops there have been put off-limits. Similar action may be taken elsewhere.

"The trouble is that many personnel fresh in from the States find fish and chips quite appetizing," one sergeant explained.

Previously ground crews could be as much as 29 pounds heavier than flight crews. The lure of fish and chips and other English dishes proved so strong that many are ballooning out of shape.

Tightening rules and belts, the Air Force now has ordered all ground airmen to be just as trim as flight crews.

A 5-foot-10 ground airman, 25 years old, used to be allowed to weigh up to 219 pounds. Now he has to slim down to 190.

All airmen at South Ruislip Base outside London are being weighed to see how much damage English food has done. The fannies will get similar orders warning them against the dishes.

"Hundreds of airmen throughout Britain are going to be found overweight," a spokesman said.

Except for those with medical problems, fannies who disobey orders and still give in to the lure of fish and chips will be confined to Air Force hospitals until they kick the habit.

Nixon Sends Kissinger Back To China To Make Arrangements For His Visit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon, apparently ready to proceed with plans to visit Communist China, is sending foreign-policy advisor Henry A. Kissinger back to Peking this month to "make concrete arrangements."

Word of Kissinger's second journey to Peking in less than four months was given Tuesday by White House press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler.

Kissinger himself made a rare on-the-record appearance before White House reporters to disclose that he will be accompanied by a full advance party of technical specialists from such arms of government as the Secret Service and White House Communications Agency.

This development, coming while Westerners continued to speculate on murky happenings that might indicate significant events within China, was seen as indication that the President's plans remain unchanged—as of now, at least.

"There is nothing unusual or unforeseen that has produced this announcement," Kissinger said.

Under questioning, he said it is the official policy of the White House and all federal agencies to avoid speculation on whatever happened in Mainland China to produce the much-publicized grounding of air traffic and cancellation of an Oct. 1 National Day parade.

Kissinger, who confirmed that Washington has been in direct although "cumbersome" contact with Peking since the July announcement of Nixon's trip plans, emphasized several times that planning for the journey has been handled by the Chinese "meticulously, correctly and carefully, and there has been no impact of whatever developments may be occurring on these preparations."

Ziegler said Kissinger and a traveling party of about 10 will fly to Peking during the last half of this month.

Kissinger said he would fly to Peking aboard a presidential jet via Honolulu and would spend no more than four days in the Chinese capital. He indicated the timing of Nixon's visit would be announced soon after his return.

Asked about the timing of the Nixon visit, Kissinger said:

"We will, of course, discuss that while I am in Peking, and I think we should zero in on a date while I am there and, therefore, should have an announcement within a reasonable period after that."

The President's chief national security affairs adviser said he expects to meet in Peking, as he did during his secret trip in July, with Premier Chou Enlai.

Asked whether he would see Mao Tse-tung, the aging chief of China's Communist party, he said, "I have no idea who else from the government of the People's Republic I will be seeing."

As for the timing of his trip he said he personally thinks it will take place closer to the middle of October than the 30th. He said a full itinerary and list of participants will be made public, but that no newsmen will be taken along.

OBITUARIES

A.H. SEASTAD

Arnold H. Seastad, 65, of 128 Maple ave., Corry, died Sunday evening at the Hamot Medical Center in Erie where he had been a patient since Sept. 7.

He was born September 13, 1906 in Austin, near Goudersport, and as a child moved to Buffalo with his family. He later lived in Jamestown, N.Y., and graduated from Jamestown High School in 1925. He attended Notre Dame University and Grove City College before graduating from the University of Buffalo in 1944.

He was employed by the Eckerd drug chain in Jamestown until he established his own pharmacy on North Center st. in Corry. He operated Seastad's Drugs until May 1970 when he sold the drugs and cosmetics portion to Eckerd's. Until May of 1971 he operated the Seastad Card and Party Shop, when he sold the business.

In recent months he has served as a relief pharmacist at his brother's drug store in Warren, the Eckerd chain in this area and Davis Pharmacy in Falconer.

He had been in failing health for the past four months.

He was a member of the First United Methodist Church, the Corry School Board, the Corry Lodge, F. and A.M. the Erie Consistory, Zeta Zeta Shrine, the Corry Union City Shrine Club, the Camel Herders of the Shrine, a member and past president of the Corry Rotary Club and a member of the Lakewood Rod and Gun Club.

Surviving are his wife, the former Ruth Anderson, whom he married in Corry on June 11, 1939; two sons, Robert of Thomaston, Maine and Craig in Rochester, N.Y.; eight grandchildren, his father, John Seastad, in Cuyahoga Falls, Ohio; a sister, Mrs. Alfred (Evelyn) Mackhaken, of Cuyahoga Falls, and two brothers, Oscar of Akron, Ohio and Raymond of Warren.

Friends may call at the Bracken Funeral Home from 2 to 4 and 7 to 9 p.m. today. Funeral services will be held Thursday at 11 a.m. with the Rev. Walter Gulland officiating. Burial will follow in Pine Grove Cemetery.

ROSE LOUISE HENRIKSON

Rose Louise Henrikson, 70, of 18 S. Carver st., Warren, died at home at 5 a.m. Tuesday, Oct. 5, 1971.

She was born June 24, 1901 at Falconer, N.Y., and lived for the past 43 years in Warren. She was a former Jamestown resident.

She was a member of St. Paul's Lutheran Church and of the Lutheran Church Women.

Survivors include her husband, Clarence A. Henrikson, one son, Donald V. Henrikson of Warren, two sisters, Mrs. Hazel Johnson of Lakewood, N.Y., and Mrs. Eleanor Kettle of Warren, three grandchildren and several nieces and nephews. She was preceded in death by a brother, Carl Seaholm last month.

Friends may call from 3:30 to 5 and 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday at the Peterson-Blick Funeral Home where funeral services will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday with the Rev. Carl E.R. Nelson of St. Paul's Lutheran Church officiating. Burial will be in Warren County Memorial Park.

The family suggests contributions to the Memorial Fund of St. Paul's Lutheran Church.

Kissinger's New China Trip Eases Political Conflicts

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. Henry A. Kissinger's second mission to Red China says a good deal about possibilities for future relations between Washington and Peking. It seems also to lessen the importance of the current "What's going on in China?" mystery.

The announcement of Kissinger's plans suggests that whatever group is in control, Red China means to establish effective communication with the United States, regardless of political conflicts.

It also suggests that despite worldwide guessing about enigmatic goings-on in connection with the Oct. 1 National Day, developments inside China don't prevent plans for President Nixon's trip from moving ahead.

Peking says Nixon's chief security adviser will be in Red China sometime in the last 10 days of October to prepare for the presidential journey. The party is expected to stay about four days.

Any four days in that period will represent a critical time in U.N. debate on China's seat. If the issue is not decided by then, the vote will be at hand.

Only a day before the announcement of the new Kissinger mission, Secretary of State William P. Rogers in a major U.N. policy speech had strongly upheld the Chiang Kaishek regime's claim to retain membership. Thus it seems likely that the Nixon visit is not dependent upon the outcome of the U.N. voting or the U.S. stand for Taiwan.

Only a few days ago Rogers voiced concern that Chinese developments could affect the presidential trip. Cancellation might have been dictated by a major upheaval or by the loss of a top figure such as Chairman Mao Tse-tung.

Possibly something like a political reshuffle involving the top leaders has been in progress. Possibly some external event, such as heightened Soviet border tension, prompted China's recent enigmatic moves.

Those moves included cancellation of the National Day parade and banquet, cancellation of army leaves and commercial flights, omission of a major policy statement and slightly lessened emphasis on Mao's personality.

No Injuries

A one-car accident that occurred at 7:56 p.m. Monday on U.S. 6 about one-half mile east of Clarendon was investigated by Mead Twp. police.

According to the report of Chief Richard A. McWilliams, a car operated by Ella A. Youngquist of Clarendon, was traveling east on U.S. 6 when the operator swerved to the right to avoid striking a deer that had run onto the road. The car left the highway and went down a two foot embankment on the right and came to rest with the rear of the vehicle on the berm. No injuries were reported.

COWBOYS DO SPEND

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP) — International Rodeo Association (IRA) cowboys, stock contractors and specialty acts traveled more than 27 million miles in 1970 and spread over $13 million across the nation in the process.

These figures follow a survey conducted by the IRA and the totals reflect miles traveled and money spent for necessities of the trade by about 2,500 members.

There are signs that the decisions resulted from a week of high-level party meetings beginning in mid-September. If there had been a reshuffle near the top, the leaders might not have been ready to make it known. Thus the parade and banquet would be canceled to remove any need to regroup the leaders by rank.

As for lessened emphasis on the leader, Mao himself was reported not long ago to have expressed worry that the adulation was out of control. Perhaps with Mao's blessing the pragmatists are ready to start a cautiously gradual deflation of the cult. At a time when Red China hopes to enter the world arena with a veto-wielding seat in the United Nations, it might make political sense, too, to show the world a new look.

Such a trend could arouse alarm among ultraleftists who have been more Maoist than Mao and who also might resist the idea of a Washington-Peking rapprochement as a sellout of the revolution. A reshuffle in the party's upper reaches could involve pruning out such elements.

In any case, the U.S.-Chinese business is between governments, not parties. The original Peking announcement in July said Premier Chou En-lai issued the invitation in behalf of his government.

Chou, as a leader who lacks ambition to be No. 1, could afford to push ahead with broad policy aims, regardless of back-room party squabbling.

Peking is preparing to take its place as one of three powers whose policies will shape world affairs. If it fears or suspects the Russians, it will need channels to the United States. Chou seems intent upon opening such channels and keeping them open.

College Degree Can Lead To Good Life, Grads Say

WASHINGTON (AP) — A college education isn't worth as much in dollars as it once was, a new report claims, but it definitely leads to the good life.

College graduates do make more money, and their jobs are more comfortable, says a study for the Carnegie Commission on Higher Education.

What's more, they are more likely to be Republicans, although their political philosophies are decidedly liberal. They read more, know more, vote more and take a greater part in community activities.

"The college experience appears more likely than not to make students more open-minded and liberal, less concerned with material possessions, more concerned with aesthetic and cultured values, more relativistic and less moralistic, but more integrated, rational and consistent," the report says.

"Students tend to lessen in their adherence to traditional values and traditional behaviors," the report adds. "They become less authoritarian although this may be related to the social climate at the time of their education. They become more aware of themselves and of interpersonal relationships and show a greater readiness to express their emotions."

Dr. Clark Kerr, chairman of the commission, said at a news conference Tuesday the study was undertaken to answer questions about whether college training is generally worth the time, effort and money required.

The study was conducted by the Institute for Social Research at the University of Michigan. The report, "A Degree and What Else? The Correlates and Consequences of a College Education," will be published by McGraw-Hill later this month.

In a foreword to the published report, Kerr said people who go to college tend to be:

- More satisfied with their jobs.
- More highly paid and less subject to unemployment.
- More thoughtful and deliberate in their attitudes toward, and relations with, other individuals.
- More informed about community, national, and world affairs.
- More "liberal" and tolerant in their attitudes toward, and relations with, other individuals.
- More informed about community, national, and world affairs.

The report concludes that as a general rule "every year of higher education results in added impact and benefit."

Action Plan

Studies and Engineering Design" is what it's called in the proposed fee schedule and the price tag is $16,500.

Beyond this rudimentary information very few people actually understand the action plan; ergo the need for this article and those that follow it in this series. Between now and next Monday we'll try to explain what the action plan is (or was) and show how it would have been implemented and how much it might have cost.

At the end each reader can make his own evaluation and decide whether council was acting in the best interest of the community when it killed the proposal.

THE MASTER PLAN

The borough's old master plan was first introduced when only Ray Marti, Beyer Africa and W.D. McElwain of the present 18 councilmen were in office.

Much of the information in it is outdated. It includes proposals for a municipal swimming pool—now long since finished. It only briefly mentions the Public Safety Building as a long-range development project. Today the need is much greater for a modern fire station—even though it's not indicated in the master plan. Whether or not a police station will be included with the fire station to form a true public safety building is subject to controversy. Most borough officials agree, though, that the central fire station is poorly located and sadly out of date.

There are hundreds of small changes that need to be made so that the plan can better represent the direction of Warren Borough planning. Just simple things like updating the 1960 census population figures may shed new light on many planning activities.

So why do we need a Master Plan?

According to the planning commission's suggestions as drawn up gratis by Kendree and Shepherd Planning Consultants, "Most outside programs (Neighborhood Facilities, HUD Open Space, BOR Open Space, Project 500 Recreation Development and Water and Sewer Grants) require a periodic updating of key elements in the Master Plan."

In other words, if the borough wants federal or state aid in its development projects it has to keep its master plan current.

The so-called key elements are identified as the Community Facilities Plan, the Land Use Plan, the Circulation Plan, inclusion of a ten-year capital improvements program with a six-year action program capital budget and the addition of a section that recommends the development of intermunicipal cooperation in the field of public services and facilities.

Some of these elements overlap or are dependent on other portions of the plan. For instance the community facilities plan, which outlines the borough's need for schools, recreation facilities and municipal services, is closely related to the capital improvement program and inevitably to the action plan budget if the need is great enough.

In one section we may find that a school is needed, later it is given a priority in the ten-year scheme of things and finally, if it is needed bad enough, it will be given a dollar value and scheduled for construction during the next six years so that its cost will not severely tax the borough residents.

The idea is to spread development around so that it isn't all being done at the same time, with all the construction costs due at the same time.

The actual use of the land in the borough has changed since 1963, so the land use maps and statistics must be revised so that planners and funding agencies alike can better understand what the trends are here. Secondly there have been a great number of zoning changes in the borough during the past few years, none of which is reflected in the master plan.

Already there is some inter-municipal cooperation such as the solid waste program that communities all over Warren County are involved in. A new section in the master plan would outline ways that the borough could cooperate with surrounding townships and outlying boroughs to realistically face such problems as public safety, sewage treatment and recreation.

Most municipal problems are becoming increasingly complex—most also are controlled by sophisticated state and federal regulations. Since many small municipalities do not have the resources to cope with these problems the trend has been to band together.

The update of the master plan would have dealt with that problem.

TOMORROW—Will the downtown district continue to survive?

Hospitals

services of the VA physician. In towns like Marion, Coatesville and Perry Point, community demand for psychiatrists is small and since the VA generally cannot pay a physician a salary comparable to what he can earn in private practice, a staffing gap develops.

"When a doctor comes to me and asks me what he can make in the VA and I tell him, he laughs in my face," said Dr. Otto Schaefer, director of the Coatesville hospital, a psychiatric institution with a sub-standard staff ratio of .87-to-1. "Occasionally we can pick up a general practitioner or an internist, or, if we're really have a good run of luck, a surgeon," Schaefer said. "But months or even years can pass without contact with a good psychiatrist."

3-Car Mishap

Reported

State police at the Kane substation reported a three-vehicle accident on U.S. 219 at 7:50 p.m. Tuesday. They reported no injuries and said total property damage came to $2,050.

According to the report, a truck operated by James Brihart of Kane was traveling south on 219 when it crossed over the centerline and hit a northbound truck operated by Nicholas P. George of 152 Congress st., Bradford, and continued on to strike a northbound sedan operated by Adolfo Lucarelli of 1292 W. Washington st., Bradford. The accident occurred about eight miles south of Bradford.

Damages $1,350

Property damage was estimated to total $1,350 in a two-car traffic accident at 12:55 p.m. Monday.

Borough police officer James P. Nelson reported that a car driven by Jay E. McAuley, Sheffield, Pa., was stopped on St. Clair st. for a traffic light, when an auto operated by Robert A. Seland, 106 Central ave., Warren, turned west onto St. Clair, crossed over the center line and struck the McAuley vehicle.

Seland was cited for reckless driving, police said.

MISHAP ON ROUTE 62

State police of the Warren substation investigated this mishap at 3:20 a.m. Tuesday on Route 62, one and a half miles north of Warren in front of the Pennsylvania Bank & Trust Company's branch bank. According to police the 1966 Cadillac coupe was traveling north when it struck a barrel placed in the middle of the roadway as a warning device, ran off the highway onto the west berm and into a ditch. Owner of the auto was listed as Dale Barrett, RD 3, Sugar Grove, and damage estimated at $55. (Photo by Mansfield)

Court Orders Erie Teachers Back To Work

ERIE, Pa. (AP) — A court order was handed down Tuesday aimed at settling the state's longest running teacher strike.

Some 88 teachers in the North East School District were ordered to be back in their classrooms by Wednesday morning, and both the school board and teachers association were to resume negotiations on a new contract.

Judge Lindley McClelland of the Erie County Common Pleas Court gave the two sides two weeks in which to reach agreement or have the dispute submitted to binding arbitration. The North East teachers struck more than five weeks ago, prior to the opening of classes for some 2,100 students.

The school district opened schools on a limited basis last Wednesday, using substitute and non-striking teachers.

Meanwhile, the state's only other ongoing teachers strike also was in the courts for a decision.

Washington County Judge Thomas Gladden was to rule late Tuesday on a request by the Burgettstown School Board for an injunction to end a strike by some 135 teachers which began there Sept. 5.

Former Mines Secretary Testifies In Probe On Alleged Collusion

HARRISBURG (AP) — H. Beecher Charnbury, former secretary of mines, testified Tuesday that he approved a $4.5 million mine refuse fire project despite the advice of the attorney general to hold it up.

At the time, then Atty. Gen. Fred Speaker was investigating allegations of collusion in the bidding for the job at Forestville, Schuylkill County.

"The attorney general and Mr. (Robert) West (former chief investigator in the Justice Department) both told me they wouldn't sign the contract," Charnbury said. "But neither one would tell me there was anything illegal about it."

Charnbury's testimony came at a hearing of the state Crime Commission which is looking into alleged irregularities on a series of mine fire reclamation projects funded through the $500 million conservation bond issue of 1968. Charnbury, who is now a professor at Pennsylvania State University, prefaced his testimony by rebuffing Atty. Gen. J. Shane Creamer for subpoenaing him to the hearing.

"My attorney has advised me that there is no present legal compulsion for me to testify here today," said Charnbury who was accompanied by his lawyer. "I will testify voluntarily."

Creamer and another former attorney general, William Sennett, questioned five witnesses about procedures used in letting contracts.

The Forestville contract was awarded last Jan. 18, one day before the Department of Environmental Resources absorbed the mines agency. It was cancelled on Sept. 2 by Maurice Goddard, secretary of Environmental Resources, who said in a letter bidding was not in accordance with law.

The earlier investigation was prompted by allegations that a contractor who would have been the low bidder was pressured into withholding his offer.

Charnbury said he had heard that there was a disgruntled contractor involved and that he was concerned because only two other firms bid. But he added that the two bids were close enough to each other to quell his suspicions.

Dixon Contracting Co. Inc. bid $4.5 million and Kerris and Helfrick Inc., $4.8 million. Both firms are from Mount Carmel.

Charnbury said West told him he was not going to file a report on his investigation.

"I had no reason to hold it up and I had the responsibility to end air pollution," the former secretary said.

On the Eddy Creek project, in Lackawanna County C & S Excavating Co. submitted the low bid, Creamer said, but was then declared disqualified for the work.

Charnbury said he didn't know why the firm was found disqualified but that it was given about 10 days to appeal. Instead, he said, C & S withdrew its offer and Dixon, the next lowest bidder, was granted the contract.

Robert Lesko, deputy attorney general assigned to mines, testified that he had worded the withdrawal letter for C & S. He said he was asked to do this by Gordon E. Smith, deputy secretary for the anthracite region, so the reasons would be clearly specified.

Smith had testified earlier in the day but was not asked about the letter.

Auditor Gen. Robert P. Casey, who first alerted Speaker to the Forestville allegations, has estimated cost overruns on the series of jobs at $12 million.

Charnbury objected to the use of the term overrun because he said there were many projects to be dealt with and a limited amount of funds. The department tried to get as many jobs started as possible with the available money and then added extensions to the contracts, he said.

In some cases the extensions were for more than the original contract. When bids were invited for a burning bank extinguishment job near Ashley, Luzerne County, contractors were asked how many days they would work with specified equipment and manpower for $500,000. But the contract was awarded for $2.8 million.

Dixon was low bidder, offering to work 70 days for $500,000 at a daily rate of $7,144. The contract of $2.8 million was for 392 days — the daily rate was the same.

Sennett asked why such an unusual procedure was followed.

"When an operator bid," Charnbury replied, "he had to take the chance that if operating costs went up he was stuck at the same (daily) rate."

Others to testify were Leon Erlich, the deputy attorney general preceding Lesko, and Robert K. Bloom, secretary to former Gov. Raymond P. Shafer.

Emergency Talks Scheduled On Violence In Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Prime Minister Brian Faulkner said Tuesday he is flying to London this week for more emergency talks about the violence in this British province, which he described as "bleeding to death."

As he spoke at Stormont, the provincial parliament, guerrillas robbed a bank and fought a gun battle with troops caught in ambush.

Faulkner told the session, boycotted by the pro-Roman Catholic opposition, that he will hold new crisis talks on Thursday with Prime Minister Edward Heath.

Faulkner and Heath conferred a week ago in a three-way summit with Prime Minister Jack Lynch of the Irish republic to the south.

Their peace plea was spurned by terrorists trying to oust the British from Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland.

The parliament debate and street shootings came on the third anniversary of a Catholic civil rights march that has been followed by escalating violence in which 116 persons have died.

With public galleries emptied for security reasons, Faulkner told the Stormont he would try yet again with Heath to find a peace formula.

Fourteen of the 52 seats in parliament were vacant because of a boycott by oppositionists charging Faulkner with being too tough by jailing 220 suspected terrorists without trial.

Faulkner rejected as "a waste of time" oppositionist plans announced earlier in the day to convene their own rival parliament at Strabane on Oct. 26.

While the oppositionists claim he's too tough, Faulkner was under pressure from militant Protestants in his Unionist party who claim he's not tough enough.

Observers feared a Protestant backlash against Catholic-based guerrillas that could touch off a civil war unless Faulkner and Heath crack down harder on the outlawed Irish Republican Army—IRA. The IRA wants to unite Ulster with the Irish Republic.

Ulster is the official name of the six Northern provinces. Faulkner defended his Aug. 9 decision to intern IRA suspects without right of trial.

Dallas Jail Riot Leaves One Dead, Five Injured

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Sheriff Clarence Jones stood amidst the rubble of a night of rioting in Dallas County jail Tuesday and said: "We've got our jail back and by God we're going to keep it."

One prisoner was dead, a jailer hospitalized with a heart attack, and two other prisoners and two officers injured in hand-to-hand combat after about 800 inmates went on a four-hour rampage.

Suspension Of Pakistan Aid Approved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee approved Tuesday the House-voted suspension of U.S. aid to Pakistan.

The provision provides that all U.S. economic, military and other aid, including sales of military equipment and agricultural commodities, be stopped until the Pakistani government cooperates in stabilizing the situation in East Pakistan and permits refugees to return.

Aid would be resumed when President Nixon certified to Congress that those actions had taken place.

The House action was an outgrowth of the Pakistani government's action in sending troops into East Pakistan to put down a revolt.

The Senate committee rejected 7 to 6 an amendment by Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, that would have delayed resumption of aid for 60 days after the President's report. It also would have given either house of Congress the power to keep the suspension in effect.

The action was taken as the Foreign Relations Committee continued voting in closed session on the house-passed, two-year foreign aid authorization bill.

Final Committee action may come later this week, gearing the measure for full Senate consideration next week.

Screaming "We want justice!" they burned their mattresses and held off officers with makeshift weapons fashioned from pieces of metal sinks and bunks, broom handles and sharpened glass.

It was the third and most serious revolt prisoners have staged in 15 days. Jones called it "a rebellious thing that we are seeing all over the country." He blamed the trouble on "outside elements."

Only about 300 prisoners confronted the officers. The others involved in the rampage either were sealed off or went to their cells voluntarily.

Dr. Charles Petty, the county's chief medical examiner, performed an autopsy on the dead prisoner, Laurence Edward Jackson, 36, indicted for robbery.

A spokesman in Dr. Petty's office said no injury was found on the body and it was the doctor's opinion that death was due to a disease process, although confirmation of this would have to await further tests.

Assistant Chief Deputy O. Bryne Cox said Jackson had no apparent injury beyond a cut finger.

The prisoners remained confined in steel-barred tanks, where they are grouped together during part of each day.

They were forced back—"fighting like dogs" as one deputy put it—with high pressure fire hoses. Deputies swinging riot sticks followed. Then came six police dogs.

As each tank was brought under control, prisoners were searched, stripped, and sent to solitary confinement.

Vandalism Reported In Nationwide Coal Strike

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP) — Two incidents of vandalism were reported Tuesday in Ohio as a nationwide coal strike spread to several nonunion mines in Appalachia.

More than 80,000 miners were idle in a six-state area.

Negotiators for the United Mine Workers Union and the Bituminous Coal Operators met in Washington with Labor Secretary James Hodgson, but union sources reported they were "not even close" to reaching agreement on a new contract.

Figures issued by UMW districts and coal associations representing nonunion mines indicated 88,000 miners did not work Tuesday in West Virginia, Virginia, Ohio, Kentucky, Pennsylvania and Tennessee.

Ten nonunion mines in Ohio which employ about 1,500 men were closed by management in efforts to avoid violence, but spokesmen for the R & F Coal Co. in Harrisville and the Cravat Coal Co. at Holloway reported property damage. A temporary injunction was issued in Belmont County Court at St. Clairsville, prohibiting picketing and acts of violence at Cravat's mine.

Michael Puskarich, secretary of Cravat, said windows had been smashed at his company's office and said several pickup trucks had been damaged. He estimated damage at $3,000.

Coal industry sources have said uncertainty over what will be included in Phase 2 of President Nixon's economic program has seriously affected the negotiations in Washington.

Union leaders say the industry is procrastinating, claiming large differences still exist over wages and some benefits.

UMW President W.A. "Tony" Boyle seeks to raise miners daily wages from $38 to $50, and to increase the royalty paid by coal companies on union-mined coal from 40 to 80 cents a ton. That money is used to finance the miners, welfare and retirement fund.

Blount Stands Alone On French Boycott Note

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration dissociated itself Tuesday from Postmaster General Winton M. Blount's suggestion Americans boycott French imports because much of the heroin coming to this country originates in France.

State Department press officer Charles W. Bray said Ambassador Arthur K. Watson, the U.S. envoy to France, had been instructed to inform the French government of this stand.

Bray told a news conference the postmaster general expressed "his personal views which were not authorized by the U.S. government and do not reflect the views of the U.S. government."

Blount made the suggestion Monday in Dallas, Tex. He said 80 per cent of the heroin smuggled into the United States is coming from France.

Bray said the administration was "pleased with and grateful for the cooperation the French government extended in efforts to control the manufacture and trafficking in heroin."

He also said he could not quarrel with the 80 per cent figure mentioned by Blount, but thought it was decidedly high.

U.S. Embassy officials in Paris, on their own initiative, communicated to the French government their disapproval of the Blount statement. They said they were dismayed by the postmaster general's remarks.

The American diplomats told Blount's statements in no way represented the opinion of the Nixon administration and that the United States was in fact pleased by the increased efforts of the French police to deal with the narcotics situation.

It was believed in Paris that a special effort was made by the U.S. government to disavow Blount's remarks because the French knew Blount went on a mission this summer for President Nixon and they could have assumed he was reflecting the views of the President.

Ethiopian Emperor Visits Red China

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia arrived in Communist China Tuesday on a state visit that could shed light on murky developments in Peking that have puzzled Western analysts.

The New China News Agency said Selassie, 79 and his entourage flew to Canton by special plane and would continue to Peking on Wednesday. He is the first foreign head of state to visit Communist China since rumors began buzzing last month about possible changes in the party hierarchy.

The Peking broadcast, monitored in Tokyo, said the Ethiopian emperor was given a warm welcome at Canton by Chinese officials including Liu Hsiang-yuan, chairman of the Provincial Revolutionary Committee.

Selassie is visiting Red China at the invitation of the Peking leadership. His rank as head of state will make it difficult for government and party officials to turn down any request to confer with the highest officials, including Mao Tse-tung.

State Highways System Totals 44,257 Miles

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Commonwealth's highway system now totals 44,257 miles, an increase of 140 over last year, the Department of Transportation reported Tuesday.

The bulk of the added mileage came from completed links of Interstate systems.

The Commonwealth's public roads and streets show total mileage of 115,259, an increase of 448 miles over 1970. This includes 45,786 miles of second class township roads and the rest borough and city streets and the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Pennsylvania's top county in state highway mileage is Westmoreland with 1,301 while Lancaster ranks second with 1,270. Cameron County with 118 miles of state highways has the fewest miles administered by the Department of Transportation.

Pennsylvania ranks fourth in the nation in state-administered highways, led only by North Carolina, Texas and Virginia.

Parma Heights Widow Files $780,000 Suit

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — A Parma Heights widow has filed a $780,000 suit against a British airplane manufacturer and the U.S. Government in the death of her husband in a TAG Airlines plane crash.

Marilyn Feldman filed suit in U.S. District Court Monday against the government and the Hawker-Siddeley Aviation Ltd., owner of DeHavilland.

A DeHavilland Dove piloted by her husband, Jake, 44, crashed in Lake Erie Jan. 28, 1970, killing all nine men aboard.

The suit alleges that negligence and "breach of warranties" caused the crash. Government employees were alleged to have been negligent in regard to maintenance and repair requirements on the aircraft.

The National Transportation Safety Board has blamed the crash on a crack in a wing fitting.

Music Boosters Tag Days Are October 8-9

The once-a-year tag days in Warren through which the Warren Area School Music Boosters provide a financial supplement to the music program in the local schools will be held Friday and Saturday, October 8 and 9, according to Elmer A. Mellander, music boosters' president.

Money raised on these special days has been supporting the music program for over thirty-five years, helping to provide new uniforms for the bands and new robes for the choirs, as well as much-needed instruments and scholarships.

This year, for example, the music boosters purchased raincoats for the Warren High School marching band and contributed one-half the cost for new majorette uniforms.

And, this fall, the boosters are sponsoring an appearance here of the Mansfield State College Concert Wind Ensemble, one of the finest concert bands in the northeastern United States.

Members of Warren High School band, orchestra, and chorus will be on the streets of downtown Warren Friday from 4 p.m. to 9 p.m. Members of the Beatty Junior High School music groups will serve on Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Russell Thelin, chairman for the annual tag days, asks everyone to look for the music students this weekend on the street corners and to purchase a tag as a contribution to the furtherance of the music program in Warren schools.

Another Mothhole

Ever since American League officials okayed the transfer of the Washington Senators there have been mutterings at both high and low levels that now if ever is the time to do away with baseball's special exemptions from the provisions of the Sherman anti-trust laws and reduce their status to that of other professional sports. If the anti-trust laws are good for professional football, hockey and basketball, why wouldn't they be good for the "baseball business"? This is the $64,000 question.

The mutterings are nothing new. In fact, they started away back in 1922 when the Supreme Court first ruled that baseball was exempt from the anti-trust laws and have continued almost without let up ever since. Last year they concerned the moving of the Seattle Pilots franchise.

So after all these years (and all these mutterings) one may come to wonder why baseball is still holding its favored position, and upon a little investigation come to learn that the baseball magnates themselves have very little to do with it.

In a 1953 decision, the Supreme Court stated that so far as it could determine "Congress had no intention of including the business of baseball within the scope of the federal anti-trust laws."

They went on to say, "We therefore, conclude that the orderly way to eliminate error or discrimination, if any there be, is by legislation and not by court decisions. Congressional processes are more accommodative, affording the whole industry hearings and an opportunity to assist in the formulation of new legislation."

But the members of congress have failed to catch the hot potato the jurists have thrown them. Mostly, it would seem, because of the ballot-box effect any "adverse" legislation concerning the national pastime would generate with the sport fans back home. So, in spite of the fact that both the jurists and the legislators admit that baseball's exemption status is unfair to other professional sports, the standoff persists.

This allows a condition which is perhaps of little concern to the average citizen to continue without challenge. But what should be of interest to the average citizen is that in a nation which boastfully proclaims its desire for fairness, this condition has been perpetuated for personal and/or professional benefits. Another mothhole in the tapestry depicting our national heritage.

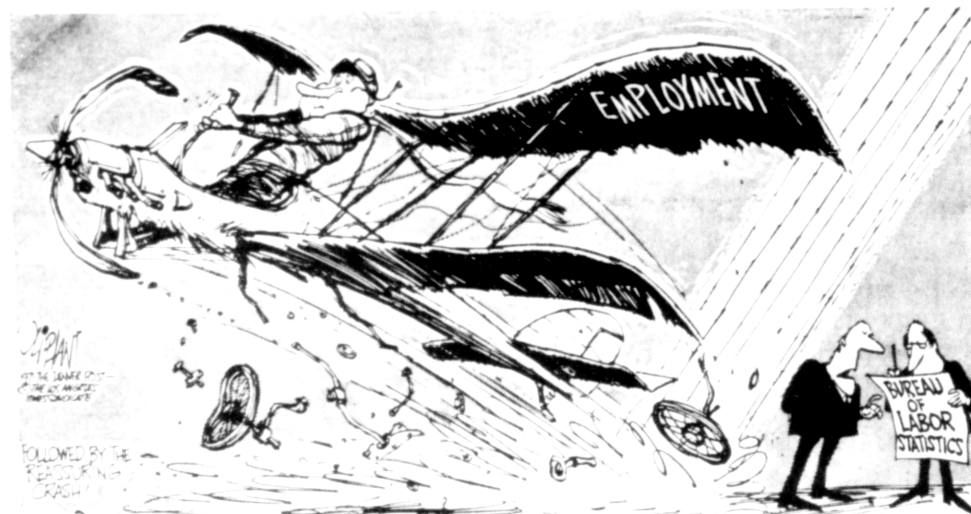

Time To Give

The 1971 United Fund provides the opportunity for the community to present a United Front - with everyone giving his fair share that vital services may be continued. This area where we live and work, benefits from those services rendered by the United Fund. Therefore we benefit from our own pledges of support.

The concept of once-a-year giving to a central agency is the least burdensome to individuals and the most equitable and efficient way of distributing and apportioning contributions. More of your gift dollars go directly for charitable purposes and less to administrative and operating costs of fund-raising campaigns.

The question to ask is -- would you want to live in a community in which agencies supported by the United Fund did not exist? -- and the services did not exist for you in the event you should need them?

Most people know about community problems. They see the needs from day to day. That's why all should give the United Way. Present a United Front in support of the United Fund.

THE PENNSYLVANIA STORY

Top-Flight Leadership

By Mason Denison

HARRISBURG -- Despite changes in State Administration from Republican to Democrat and vice-versa over the years, these winds of change have pretty much left undisturbed one of its top departments -- the Pennsylvania State Police.

Over the years, by and large, the effectiveness and leadership of the State Police has been top-flight which, of course, redounds to the immediate, daily benefit to the Pennsylvanians they serve.

It is frequently stated that the Pennsylvania State Police have been held up as a model to other states and there is far more evidence supporting this kudo than to the contrary.

There hasn't been a scandal in memory (At best, the wire-tapping flap in the late 1960's could be called a controversy, not a scandal, even though it drove out the Commissioner E. Wilson Purdy. Highly respected in the national police community, Mr. Purdy had three strikes against him when he first became Commissioner -- he was from out of state.)

One way to test the integrity and professionalism of this elite corps in grey is to try and get a speeding ticket fixed.

To his credit, the then-Governor David Lawrence instituted this iron-clad "no fix" policy and it has stuck ever since.

Speaking of Governors, it falls upon each new Governor every four years to appoint a State Police Commissioner, the top dog so to speak. And every four years the troopers and officers (including other police across the state) hold their collective breaths.

But to their credit, the past several Governors have used professionalism rather than politics as a yardstick and have come up with some good appointments.

Governor Scranton, a Republican, reached out of state to appoint Mr. Purdy and immediately ran into flak for picking a non-Pennsylvanian. But despite the wire-tap controversy Colonel Purdy has been and is respected as a top-flight cop.

Following Mr. Scranton, Governor Shafer, also a Republican, picked Frank McKetta as Commissioner. Before leaving last year to become the Federal General Services Administration (GSA) top cop, McKetta modernized the Department and brought it into the air age with helicopters.

Then last winter incoming Governor Shapp, a Democrat, chose a career officer (as McKetta was) with the intriguing name of Rocco Urella. Colonel Urella plunged in, overcame some personal tragedies that might have shaken a lesser man, and has been credited with doing a good job to date.

One of the reasons for the effectiveness of the boys with the "Smoky Bear" hats is the fact that the Commissioners have adhered to Napoleon's dictum of surrounding himself with top lieutenants such as Deputy State Police Commissioner Lieutenant-Colonel Joseph Dussia (of safe-cracking fame) -- and at the other "extreme" a non-Trooper but a former professional newsman, James Cox, the State Police public relations man. Over the years the State Police have enjoyed excellent rapport with the state's news media.

This is no easy chore considering the "egg-shell" walking that the Troopers must endure in these days of civil disturbance and campus unrest. Take the Pittsburgh Hill District "riot" of four years ago. The National Guard moved in but, no two-ways about it, they were under the control of the State Police, one State Policeman for every five Guardsmen, both the Guard and State Police performed admirably in that touchy situation.

If Pennsylvania should ever be faced with an unfortunate Attica-type situation it will be the State Police who will be in the vanguard.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

WASHINGTON -- The FBI and State Department have been squabbling behind the scenes over how to deal with Soviet espionage in this country.

The British have tipped us off that the massive espionage they have uncovered is typical of what's going on in the U.S. as well.

Their informant is a Soviet KGB agent, who rode up to the British Foreign Office in a Soviet Embassy limousine and asked for asylum. He walked in with a satchel full of secret documents, outlining the entire Soviet espionage operation in Britain.

The documents included no details about Soviet espionage in the U.S., but the defector asserted the pattern was the same.

This wasn't news to the FBI, which has been keeping close tabs on the 525 Soviet diplomats, trade officials and journalists in the U.S.

Many have been linked to direct acts of espionage. Others have encouraged racial, industrial and campus unrest through undercover contact with American activists. Soviet agents, for example, have helped to stir up the nationwide campaign in behalf of Angela Davis, the Red Joan of Arc, now in federal custody.

The British, once confronted with the documented evidence of Soviet spying, expelled 90 Russians from the country and revoked the visas of 15 others. The U.S. during the 1960s expelled 11 Soviet Embassy officials, another 11 Soviet UN employees.

FBI SURVEILLANCE

The FBI has accumulated enough evidence to justify the expulsion of several more Soviets. But the State Department has opposed their ouster, particularly in recent years, for the sake of Soviet-American relations.

In order to promote the spirit of détente, the State Department has preferred to overlook what it considers to be purely routine espionage.

For instance, the FBI made a case against Oleg D. Kalugin, a handsome Soviet newsman-diplomat-agent, who tried to recruit a Greek immigrant for undercover work in the U.S. Under the assumed name of "Victor Kraknikovich," Kalugin held secret trysts with the immigrant, John Makris, in hotel lobbies, restaurants, a Greenwich village bookstore and at various spots in the Bronx.

They discussed a number of plans. First, Makris was to infiltrate the anti-Castro movement in New York. Later he was to move to Washington and set up a business front, then travel around the country as a bagman, distributing money to Soviet agents. At one point, Kalugin instructed Makris to cultivate a secretary in the FBI's Manhattan office.

But all the while, Makris was reporting to the FBI. The evidence justified Kalugin's expulsion, but the State Department didn't want to rock the diplomatic boat.

The FBI made a similar case against Galina "Galya" Utekhina, formerly the Soviet cultural attaché in Washington. FBI agents soon discovered she was promoting culture at softly lit restaurants where she dated prominent figures from Capitol Hill, government agencies, western embassies and the United Nations.

Again, the State Department refused to take action. The battle between diplomacy and security, meanwhile, is still going on.

WASHINGTON WHIRL

Nixon's Movies -- President Nixon takes a puritanical view of the nation's morals in public and in private, practices what he preaches. His staff has orders to review all movies before they are shown in his miniature White House theater or at his San Clemente or Camp David retreats. Those rated "R" or "X" are rejected.

Fighting Dove -- Only a couple of companions noticed how Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., reacted during the recent rock-throwing attack upon the Saigon church where he was meeting with Vietnamese dissidents. As rocks ripped through the church windows and fire bombs exploded outside, McGovern began collecting rocks. "What are you doing?" demanded aide Frank Mankiewicz. The peace-preaching Senator explained quietly that he was gathering "ammunition" to fight back.

Slow Mail -- The Navy's interoffice mail system makes even the bogged-down U.S. Postal Service look efficient. Naval inspectors, after a secret study, reported: "A recent series of tests was conducted to record times required to process mail from receipt to arrival at action desks." They found it sometimes took six days to deliver interoffice mail one block, sometimes three days to route it from one floor to another in the same building. "Several pieces (of mail) were lost" during the tests. Concludes the inspectors' classified report: The Navy "falls short of the standard" (of) two working hours from receipt in the mailroom to delivery to the action desk.

Medical Squeeze -- The American Medical Association maintains such tight control over medical training in this country that half of the qualified applicants are turned away. The reason for this is to restrict the number of doctors so they can continue to charge high fees. Thousands of high school graduates, who want to become doctors, are forced to take up other professions. The more persistent go to foreign schools for their medical training. More than 1,000 Americans, for example, attend a medical school across the border in Guadalajara, Mexico.

Congress Takes No Stand Against Red China Now

By Peter A. Harkness
Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON -- For the first time in 20 years, Congress has failed to go on record against the admission of Communist China to the United Nations.

The traditional policy statement on China, contained in the State Department appropriations bill, was deleted this year on a point of order during House debate.

The maneuver received little attention at the time, but in a sense it ended an era in Congress. This year neither the House nor the Senate has passed the routine resolution expressing opposition to the seating of the Peking regime in the UN.

Majority Uncertain

"I'm not sure the majority of Congress would oppose the seating of Communist China in the United Nations this year," said Sen. Strom Thurmond (R-S.C.) when asked why the 20-year precedent had been broken. He continues to oppose a seat for mainland China in the UN.

Pressure both in the world and the United States for the admission of Communist China has "caused this backtracking" in the conservative position in Congress, according to an aide to Rep. Joe D. Waggoner Jr. (D-La.), a leading spokesman in the House for the conservatives on China policy.

The traditional congressional resolution opposing Peking's admission to the UN has been foregone this year, he said, because Congress "wants to give the President a little leeway, to give him every benefit of the doubt as far as peace in the world is concerned."

Conservative Split

In late September, 21 Senators and 33 House members of both parties issued a statement declaring that if Taiwan were expelled from the UN, "we would feel compelled to recommend a complete reassessment of U.S. financial and moral support of the UN."

At a news conference the same day, Senators James L. Buckley (Cons-R.N.Y.) and Bill Brock (R-Tenn.), who had drafted the statement, stressed that their action did not represent a break with the Administration. Instead, Buckley said, it was an attempt to dramatize the concern of many members of Congress and "help rally the strongest possible support" for the U.S. resolution in the United Nations to admit Communist China while retaining a seat for Taiwan.

The news conference abruptly broke up when two of Congress' staunchest conservatives -- Representatives John G. Schmitz (R-Calif.) and John R. Rarick (D-La.) -- disassociated themselves from the statement.

'Too Soft for Us'

"This is too soft a position for us," Schmitz stated as they left. "When the so-called conservatives of the Senate start talking about a two-China policy, that's where I get off."

Schmitz, a member of the John Birch Society, also commented on President Nixon's planned journey to mainland China. When Mr. Nixon travels to Peking, he said, "he ought to take troops with him."

The deterioration of the traditional conservative position on China was punctuated by the Schmitz-Rarick walkout. For two decades, a substantial majority of members has strongly opposed the admission of the People's Republic into the world organization.

But in 1971, many of those had come to face what they considered a reality. "It is now clear," Sen. Brock told reporters at the news conference, "that Red China will be admitted (to the UN) and seated on the Security Council." The question now on the minds of many members, he added, was the fate of Taiwan.

The Tragic Riddle Of Racism

Racism is a riddle. It may never be settled to the satisfaction of both sides, because, underlying all the platitudes and sops to the Negroes, the blacks are reduced to two distasteful options: (1). Join the white race; (2). Segregate and separate completely.

My wife and I have just finished a leisurely tour of the East from Miami to New York and back again. Fifteen years ago, I made the same tour (with stops in Mississippi, Alabama, Louisiana) for King Features Syndicate and interviewed many of the same people. My interest centered on the black because he was the abused and unhappy one.

The changes in 15 years are on the surface. Schools are now integrated, but the blacks lunch by themselves and speak their own "down home" language. White boys fraternize with blacks in sports, but few of them invite their dark brothers to social affairs. Fewer blacks invite white friends to their ghetto homes.

Overnight, the dark man has become sacrosanct. At Attica prison, the superintendent allowed the rampaging convicts to dictate who would mediate -- a Black Panther. This is akin to inviting a convicted child molester as a baby sitter.

For 300 years, the Negro has asked for equal justice, equal privileges, equal social standing. White men mongrelized his race by violating his women. Thus he was not black, not white. As his numbers grew, he tried harder to become white by pressing the kinks from his hair, dressing like the white man, thinking white, eating white.

It wasn't enough. He was unacceptable, repulsed, even in church where God is colorless and Jesus died for all. Since May 1964, when the Supreme Court declared that "separate but equal" facilities amounted to discrimination, the United States of America has been in convulsion. One hundred and eighty million whites polarized themselves against 22,000,000 blacks.

The battle lines were drawn. Rosa Parks' feet hurt and she sat in the front of a Montgomery bus. Her feet made the Rev. Martin Luther King, Jr. a hero. He did not realize that the black ministers of Montgomery propelled him to the front of the fight because they had to continue to live in Montgomery -- his real home was in his father's Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta.

Therefore, he could stick his neck out and fight. It took him 39 years to live out his existence; it required three years for me to live it as a researcher. I saw him in better perspective than he did.

And yet, racial feelings are so ingrained that, on TV, Miss Barbara Walters of the Today show, who is not known as a student of racial conflict, became outraged when I said that King had a weak side -- he could not bear to be hit in a melee or to languish in jail. "I could not disagree with you more!" Miss Walters shouted.

Mrs. B. and I tooled the car through the South, stopping to speak to whites and blacks. Many were timid. Some were not. The token Negro in the courts, or as a movie star, or in the Legislatures, does not help the black who lives in an unpainted tenement farmer shack out on a dark farm, or in a cold-water flat in Harlem.

Perhaps the deepest and most disturbing truth is that, as the white man says "Okay, join up with us," the Negro has stopped slicking his hair. He cultivates an African coiffure, wears a dashiki, and retreats to his black enclave. For 300 years he tried to be white; now he wants to be blacker than black and he asserts that "Black is beautiful."

He has split himself into so many disparate factions that his body politic is weak. On the night that Martin Luther King was shot, the Black Panthers held a party of celebration in Oakland, California. On police departments, blacks have formed organizations opposed to white officers.

In the social strata of Negro life, the black bank president, the black insurance company owner, the black investment counselor will not live in the black community and refuses to assist the poor. The student militants divorce themselves from peaceful parents and stage fire demonstrations that achieve publicity which, in turn, further polarizes the races through fear.

Racism, my friend, is a tragic riddle.

Who Is Them?

By Russell Baker

(c) N.Y. Times News Service

WASHINGTON -- John Mitchell, attorney general and chief political strategist to the President of the United States, having drawn up the chief political strategy for the presidential campaign of 1972 and sent it ahead to his chief, reported to the White House the other day to see how the chief liked it.

The President was ebullient in a reserved way.

"John," he said, "you've done it again, but --"

"Thank you, Mr. President."

"There is just one thing, John, I'm not quite sure I understand it."

Mitchell's merry eyes twinkled. "Well, Mr. President," he said, "I think it's fairly easy. We're going to hit them, and hit them again, and then hit them again and again. I hope you have still got a little of 'The Old Nixon' left in you, Mr. President, because this is going to be your kind of campaign."

"The war issue, John. I don't quite see what you have in mind for handling the war issue."

"You hit them for letting the war drag on for four bloody years while our prisoners languish in North Vietnam. You hit them with charges that their imagination has failed, that they have no ideas. And then, Mr. President, you tell the voters that you know how to stop the war in Vietnam, and have a plan for ending it."

"John, if I say that, they're going to ask me what the plan is."

"Of course, they are, Mr. President. And you are going to say, 'I can't tell you what the plan is until I've been reelected.'"

"I see. Now what is this about bureaucrats, John?"

"You're going to hit them with charges that they've created a vast, expensive, parasitic bureaucracy to direct a socialistic economic policy of state controls which --"

"John --"

"Controls which make a mockery of the great American tradition of free enterprise operating in a free market. Controls enforced by despotic government bureaucrats, who even have the power to tell the working man how much money he can earn and --"

"John, would you move ahead now? What is this about selling out the 14 1/2 million Chinese?"

"That takes you into China policy, Mr. President. You make a series of hard-hitting speeches charging that a reckless policy of flirtation with the atheistic Communists of Mainland China constitutes a sellout of the 14 1/2 million Chinese on Taiwan. You can really make them wriggle when you hook them on that old China policy issue, Mr. President."

"I see, John. And the next thing you have here says 'soft on Communism.' What's that mean, John?"

"You're going to accuse them of softness on Communism, Mr. President, just like the old days. You're going to hit them for going to Red Communist Rumania and for dancing in the streets with the Red Rumanian boss. You're going to make mincemeat of them for going to Red Communist Peking and --"

"Supreme Court, John. You've got something here about the Supreme Court. What's that mean, John?"

"You're going to hit them there for letting America down on the most vital issue of our time, Mr. President. I'm speaking of school busing. You're going to hit them with responsibility for naming the chief justice who wrote the opinion upholding school busing. And you're going to tell them that the only way we can get this country turned around is by electing a president, like you, Mr. President, who will put men on the court who can be relied on to stop this school busing."

"I see, John. And what is this item marked 'crime'?"

"You're going to hit them right in the breadbasket, Mr. President, for their failure, despite four long years in office, to make the streets safe for decent people to walk, for letting fear keep the American people sealed up in their homes after sundown when --"

"John. Just a minute, John. I want to say something. This would have been a brilliant campaign for me four years ago, but something has happened in the meantime, John."

"Really, Mr. President? What?"

"Them, John, are now us."

"Frankly, Mr. President, when you get right down to it? Look how easily General Thieu was re-elected by the simple expedient of running against himself."

"This is not Southeast Asia, John. The two men sat silently for a long while, and finally Mitchell said, "Are you positive about that?"

Two Eras Of Nixon

By SYLVIA PORTER

In the first economic era of this Nixon administration, your cost of living soared a hair-raising 14.5 per cent and the purchasing power of the dollar you earn and spend in the U.S. marketplace shriveled still another 8.5 per cent.

That era spanned only two years, seven months. It began in January 1969, when Nixon entered the White House, and ended Sunday, Aug. 15, 1971, when the President slapped on a 90-day wage-price freeze and set the stage for an indefinitely prolonged period of stiff wage-price restraints.

It was a near-disaster for tens of millions of Americans—and an unmitigated disaster for all those living on fixed and small incomes, caught in the 1969-70 recession and/or stock market crash, forced out of jobs or pushed into bankruptcy.

The cumulative upsurge in the cost of living in this partial Nixon term—which included a winding-down of war too—was greater than in any full term of any President going back to the Roosevelt-Truman global-war years. The cumulative loss in the dollar's buying power in this short span was almost as large as in Johnson's entire term and in all of Truman's 1949-53 years.

The failure—so cruel, so dismal, so wasteful—was hardly deliberate! Before this subject becomes utterly befuddled by 1972's politics, let me make it clear that most economists heartily approved of the key anti-inflation moves made in the early months of Nixon's Presidency—the money squeeze, the upsurge in interest rate. The old-fashioned techniques cooled the economy, indeed—in fact, led to the first recession of the decade and sent unemployment spiraling.

But the policies did not touch the power of big unions to negotiate inflationary wage hikes and big business to pass on the costs to us in the form of higher prices—leading to more wage hikes to offset the price increases, more pay increases to offset the wage hikes...And on and on to the point where one of the nation's leading experts on the business cycle, Federal Reserve Board chairman Arthur F. Burns, publicly confessed, "The rules of economics are not working in quite the way they used to," and the world's central bankers publicly admitted they had lost faith in the dollar's integrity...And still the leap-frogging persisted until, finally, Nixon called together his advisers at Camp David and agreed to the most fundamental shift in economic policies in modern U.S. history.

Now, the second economic era of this Nixon administration is well under way.

It will last until January 1973 at least. Whatever the political events, this is a new era of economic controls—and we will not in the foreseeable future return to the freedoms of the market-place you knew in the pre-freeze period.

In this era, your cost of living will continue up but at a slower pace.

In this era, your dollar will continue to lose buying power, but also at a smaller pace.

Here are the figures, prepared for this analysis by the Bureau of Labor Statistics. We assume 1948 to be the base year, for it was the first election year after World War II's inflation and it's near enough to mean something to most people. We assume that in 1948, the consumer price index was 100 and the dollar was worth 100 cents.

Mart Prices Lower In Moderate Trading

NEW YORK (AP) — Profit-taking on recent gains left the stock market moderately lower Tuesday. Trading was moderate.

Analysts said the market was "simply expressing hesitancy" pending details about the second phase of President Nixon's economic program.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrial stocks closed down

4.52 at 891.14. Of the 1,691 issues traded on the Big Board, 762 declined and 581 advanced. Volume of 12.37 million shares compared with Monday's turnover of 14.59 million shares.

On the American Stock Exchange, losers led gainers 490 to 344 am; 1,150 issues traded. Turnover of 3.32 million shares compared with volume of 4.28 million shares Monday.

The New York Stock Exchange index of more than 1,300 common stocks closed down .06 at 54.74, while the Amex price-change index dipped .01 to 25.56.

The Associated Press 60-stock average finished the day down .7 at 325.4, with industrials off 2.4, rails up .1, and utilities up .3.

American Telephone, up 1/4 to 45 on 165,500 shares, topped the Big Board active list.

Ninety-two blocks of 10,000 shares or more were traded on the Big Board, compared with a revised total of 122 such blocks traded Monday.

September Jail Report

Chief Deputy Sheriff John Gladly reported Monday that 26 were admitted to the Warren County Jail during the month of September including two juvenile males, one juvenile female and one adult female. Thirty-three others were released from the jail during that same time. One of these, a female, was transferred to Waynesburg and a juvenile male was sent to Wanendale. The prisoners served 507 total days during the month-long period, working 1200 hours. Gladly said that 14 of the 28 admissions were repeated offenders. At present there are 15 inmates at the jail.

Baltimore Wraps It Up; Palmer, R-Men Grab AL Title

OAKLAND (AP) — Lanky Jim Palmer pitched the Baltimore Orioles into the World Series for the third consecutive season Tuesday, beating Oakland 5-3 on a seven-hitter with the Robinson boys, Brooks and

Frank, supplying the offensive punch. Palmer, 10 days short of his 28th birthday, completed the Orioles' American League championship playoff sweep for the third straight season. He also hurled the clinchers in playoff sweeps against Minnesota in 1969 and 1970. The Orioles, who have never lost a playoff game, took command when the Robinsons started connecting against Diego Segui and four Oakland relievers. Baltimore had nicked Segui for a run in the first but it was a cheap price for the A's to pay after the veteran right-hander loaded the bases with none out on walks to Don Buford and Boog Powell sandwiched around a hit by Paul Blair. Frank Robinson struck out on three pitches but Ellie Hendricks' long fly ball got the run home.

Reggie Jackson tied the score for the A's with a long home run in the third that set off a booming display of owner Charles O. Finley's fireworks behind the center field fence. It was still 1-1 in the fifth when Buford opened with his second single. Blair bounced into a force out but Powell walked. The runners advanced on Frank Robinson's infield out, giving the Orioles men on second and third with two out.

Here Manager Dick Williams decided to play the percentages and ordered Segui, a right-hander, to walk the lefty-swinging Hendricks and pitch to Brooks Robinson, who swings from the right side.

The play didn't work. Robinson ripped Segui's first pitch for a single to center, scoring two runs and putting the Orioles in front to stay.

Sal Bando, captain of the A's, narrowed the gap to one run with a sixth-inning homer that set off the Finley fireworks again.

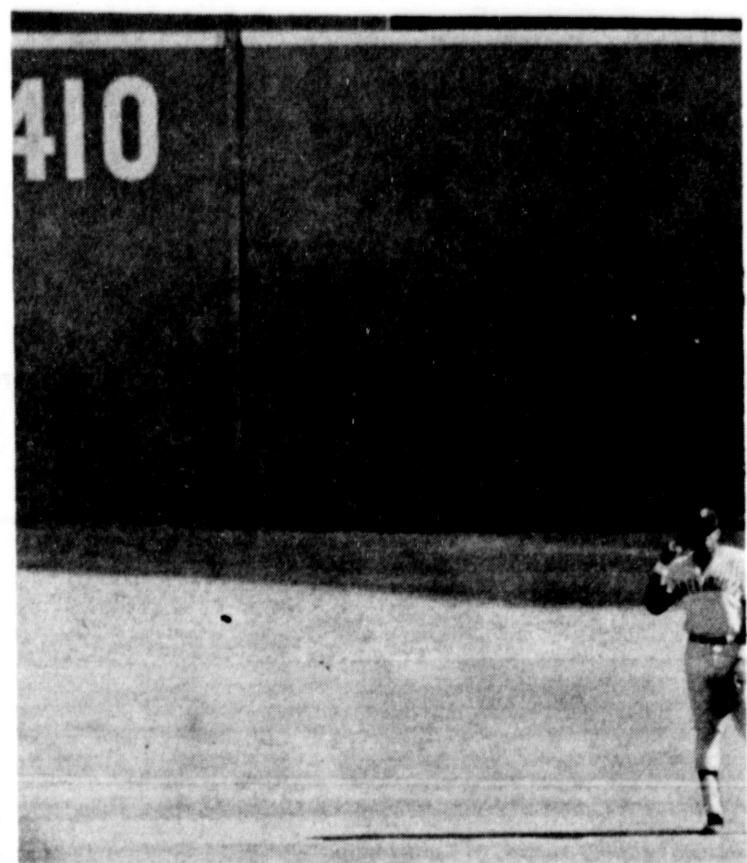

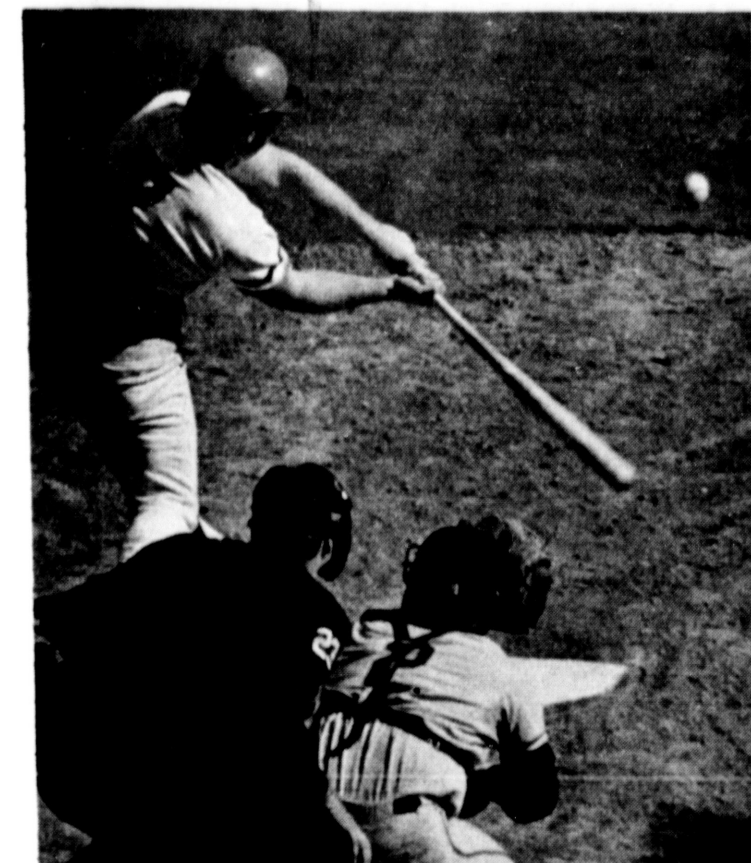

That was too close for the Birds and they padded their lead with two more runs in the seventh thanks to a double and some aggressive base running by Frank Robinson.

Powell opened the inning with a walk against reliever Rollie Fingers and then Robinson, hitless in the series so far and burdened by a 3-for-19 slump going into the game, smacked a line drive to left.

The ball landed perhaps two feet fair and banged up against the wall. As the 240-pound Powell chugged around third base, heading for home, Robinson rounded second. Powell slid home safely and Robinson pulled up at third on the play at the plate.

That finished Fingers and Darold Knowles relieved for the A's. With pinch hitter Andy Etchebarren at bat, Knowles uncorked a wild pitch that bounced perhaps 25 feet away from catcher Gene Tenace.

Not Juan, But Two Bucs Homer

HEADED . . . OUT

Pittsburgh's Bob Robertson continues to supply much of the Pirates' offensive spark with a homer barrage that now stands at four during the NL playoff series. Here, he send a Juan Marichal pitch screaming toward the wall in deep center field, left photo; at right, Giant center fielder Willie Mays walks disconsolately back from the 410-foot sign where the ball cleared the fence. (Photos by Pirillo)

Goat-To-Hero Hebner Provides Climactic Clout In Pirates' Win

By DAVID PIRILLO

PITTSBURGH—He who hesitates isn't always lost. Not by a long shot—a 340-foot one at that. Waiting on Juan Marichal's screwball to break was probably the longest split-second that Pirate third sacker Richie Hebner has made in his brief major league career.

"You have to," commented Hebner in the locker room after smacking a rifling home run over Giant rightfielder Bobby Bonds' outstretched body for the decisive blow in a 2-1 Pirate victory yesterday. "or you'll pop it up or ground it out the way he wants it."

Hebner, smiling frequently at the battery of rude, boisterous and domineering sports writers, who buzz like a drove of locusts, mentioned that he has been using Clemente's bat lately, but returned it after striking out eight consecutive times, nearly a major league record, before popping out to San Fran's Al Gallagher at third. "I'm back to using my own bat, the one I hit that homer with. And it goes to show that an easy swing can also deliver a homer." For the record books, Hebner's previous round-tripper was on August 19 against Cincinnati's Wayne Granger, nearly a month and a half ago.

It hasn't been Hebner's year up to now, and he knows it. Illness, a batting slump, and timing problems have plagued the popular Bucco, and the fans let him know that he's suffering from an off-season when he waltzed to the plate in the bottom of the eighth. A low, but audible, chorus of boos picked up support until he settled into the batter's box. But with two strikes on him, and a swish of the timber, the fans seemed to echo their forgiveness in spontaneous clapping, as if to say, "We knew you could do it all along, Richie, our boy."

Two innings before, he was sure to be labeled the "goat" of the game when he mishandled Tito Fuentes' bunt and the ball went skimming on by Dave Cash covering first. "I hesitated here, too, tried to lead Cash to the base... then I aimed the ball... which I shouldn't have done." On the play Ken Henderson safely crossed home, tying the game at 1-1.

The blunder, which Richie Hebner's Pirate management forgets, didn't add to his stability in the starting lineup. But when Danny Murtaugh was asked what he thought of the error he snorted, "Who made the error?" The press shot back, "Hebner!" "And who hit the home run?" he baited them once again. "Hebner," was the feeble response. "So there you are, boys", Murtaugh concluded.

Hebner wasn't the only boy on the block yesterday afternoon. Bob Johnson was sought out by the inquirers about his piece of work. No earned runs in eight innings against the McCoveys, Mayes and Bonds, with only a few scattered hits, is something magnificent, yes indeed.

"When I first came over here, (meaning the National League) they told me that my fast ball wouldn't work. That played on me halfway through the season, until I finally shook it and made them prove it. They haven't yet. I was throwing a fastball, another one and another all day today." Drawing a satisfied look on his face, he said, "I wonder what they think of it now. My control was sharp, and I got the ball to stay outside where I wanted it. (1) Didn't want to hit anybody, no sir, and let somebody hit a homer following."

Johnson, a hulk of a man, somewhere near 6-4 220, graciously shook off the fact that he didn't finish the game by complimenting Dave Giusti's ninth-inning relief role.

Red-haired Bob Robertson sat on a table. Half-naked and somber, the Maryland thumper fielded each question with the same prowess with which he ripped his hunk of ash that connected a three consecutive home runs over two games and four in five times at bat.

During the course of his conversation with the gentlemen of the news media, the question of, "What did he throw you, Bob?" popped up about every two or three minutes.

Making it perfectly clear for about the third time, he explained, "It was a fastball low and away." Then came the inevitable second question, "Were you expecting it, Bob?" "Yes," he assured them, "I'm always up there waiting for a fast ball."

A hesitant Hebner, a deliberate Johnson and a patient Robertson, sounds, to me, like predominant factors on a club that's making haste for the National League pennant.

Oilers Trip Dragon Harriers

Running without the services of top-rated Tim Gay and Tim Huber, Warren High's cross-country team couldn't come up with enough high places and fell to visiting Oil City 35-20 at the Airport course Tuesday afternoon.

Mark Grettenberger was the first Dragon across the line, with his 13:19 time good for third place. Jim Nelson of Warren was sixth, Bob Selan seventh, Wayne Babcock ninth and Tom Huber 10th.

Coach Bob Shaffer complimented two non-scoring Dragon finishers, lauding first-year seniors Dale Dickerson and Wayne McNeal for their 12th and 13th place finishes. "They are really coming along for us," he noted. "If Gay and Huber had been healthy the outcome might have been different."

Warren is at Corry on Friday, and hosts Cranberry in the final home meet next Tuesday.

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Pitcher Bob Johnson, a self-proclaimed dud, and third baseman Rich Hebner, who felt like a fool hitting and a goat fielding, redeemed themselves Tuesday by leading the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 2-1 National League playoff victory over San Francisco.

Johnson, a substitute who wasn't told he was going to pitch until eight minutes before the scheduled start, allowed only five hits through eight innings. Hebner provided the winning run with a two-out homer in the eighth inning of the tense third playoff game.

The victory, in which the Pirates beat Giants' ace Juan Marichal, gave Pittsburgh a 2-1 lead in the best-of-five series and moved the club to within one victory of its first National League pennant since 1960.

Hebner, who committed the sixth inning error that led to the only San Francisco run, lashed a 1-2 pitch from Marichal just over the outstretched glove of right fielder Bobby Bonds for the decisive blow as a crowd of 38,322 rained shredded paper from the stands.

Hebner acknowledged that up to that point he felt like "a goat" because of the error and "a fool" because of the way Marichal had been toying with him.

"He'd been getting me on the outside," said Hebner. "He was making me feel like a damn fool."

But when Hebner saw Marichal's screwball, which spins outside, he knew what to do with it.

"To me it was a good pitch," said Marichal. "But he was looking for it. It looked like he started to hit it with two hands and finished with one."

Hebner's homer clinched the victory for Johnson, who already had been lifted for a pinch hitter by Manager Danny Murtaugh at the start of the inning.

Johnson, a 28-year-old right-hander who posted only nine victories during the regular season after being acquired from Kansas City, was named to start by Murtaugh after his original choice, Nelson Briles, reinjured a strained thigh while warming up.

Despite the last-minute notice, Johnson said he was ready. "I was prepared to pitch mentally," he said.

Johnson was permitted 10 extra minutes to warm up, delaying the start of the game. He then went out and matched Marichal pitch for pitch through eight innings, allowing just five hits while striking out seven and walking three.

But when Vic Davalillo hit for him to start the eighth the score was still knotted 1-1 with Marichal having allowed just three hits—including Bob Robertson's fourth playoff homer.

Marichal, who won 18 games for the Giants during the regular season and pitched the pennant-clincher in NL west on the last day of the season, struck out Davalillo and Gov Dave Cash on a grounder to short but then Hebner broke it up.

It brought quick redemption for both Johnson and Hebner. Johnson had said prior to the opening of the playoff series that the 1971 season had been a total disappointment for him. "If you can't win 15 here," he said frankly, "You gotta be a dud. I'm proving myself a dud."

But he wasn't a dud in this one, and neither was Hebner, although he opened the door for the Giants' lone run in the sixth inning. Ken Henderson opened the inning with a single for the fourth hit off Johnson and Tito Fuentes followed with a bunt down the third base line.

Hebner came in quickly to field the sacrifice but then threw wildly to first and Henderson raced around to score. The drama built later in the inning when, after Willie Mays was thrown out attempting to bunt, Willie McCovey was walked intentionally. Johnson then struck out Bonds on a 3-2 pitch but walked Dick Ditzel on a 3-2 pitch, loading the bases.

The count also went to 3-2 on Alan Gallagher but Johnson reached back and got him on a grounder to short.

The Giants threatened again in the eighth when Mays singled with one out and stole second. Bonds then walked on a 3-2 pitch one out later. And when the count went to 2-0 on Dietz, Coach Don Osborn came out to the mound for a conference.

Johnson immediately went back to work and got Dietz to hit into a force out.

At that stage, Murtaugh obviously thought it was best to pinch hit for the guy who had bailed him out for eight innings and Johnson was out of the game when Hebner cracked his homer.

LET'S TRY AGAIN

Like a thermometer in a February freeze, my percentage of accuracy falls. Regression is the word I'm looking for. Each week has its fatalities on the gridiron, this week I had three.

Two of the wrong guesses were my own fault—Warren and Johnsonburg—but the Eisenhower Knights let me down. Guess that I expected too much from Warren, but the Kane-Johnsonburg game was an eerie-meenie-miny-moe guess, and I was fooled by the Wolves' winless record in three games.

It's senseless to cry over spilled milk. Maybe it's my pride that's distorting my thinking. Now that I've sunk to the .781 plateau, I'll need a 100 percent week to build my confidence again.

Intuition told me, and I mentioned it in last week's picks, that the past weekend would be a doozy. This week looks no better.

If you trust me anymore, here are this week's guesses, er, I mean picks:

WARREN 16, TITUSVILLE 14

This game, truthfully scares me. In the last twelve years, Warren has won only two games. I think that Coach Buck Crabb has Warren's number.

Titusville started out the season in doubt of a winning year, but if you have noticed the past two solid victories over Hickory and Meadville, then a bit of wondering may cross your mind, too.

Drooping heads and emotional letdown on Warren's part from the Oil City game could make the difference. The Dragons aren't out of the title race yet, but a Rocket loss could change the complexion.

BRADFORD CENTRAL CHRISTIAN 24, SHEFFIELD 0

The Ramblers are murder. Four straight foes have fallen at their feet, none of which were serious threats to overcome the mighty forces of Coach Ted Marucca. Bolivar was the most recent to be written up in the football obituary column, when they were steamrolled, 42-0.

A trio of backs—Mike Alviti, Joe Costanzo and Don Gleason—ground out 302 yards in that game, typical of what has been happening to the other three schools on the schedule.

Kudos and all the plaudits for Coach Dick Donville's victory over Allegany Friday evening, but, I think, Bradford has too many horses for Sheffield's stable.

RANDOLPH 16, YOUNGVILLE 6

Randolph's Rockets realized that they weren't as bad as their record looked Friday evening, so they went out and upset the previously unbeaten Crawford County League leading Indians of Conneaut Valley.

Now that they're only a game out of first, I think the Rockets are spying the piece of hardware for this year's champions. Youngville, who reportedly looked good against Saegertown, may put up a whale of a stand, but I think Dale Copeland, the Rocket whiz, will be the margin of difference.

SILVER CREEK 24, EISENHOWER 0

The status of Curt Carlson and Bob Thelin are question marks to Eisenhower's chances in this one. Silver Creek is potent, a 47-point average a game is convincing enough.

They are sound, fast, you name it. Silver Creek personifies it.

OIL CITY 23, FRANKLIN 16

Franklin is undefeated in four games, but who have they played that's worthy to be called "formidable." Certainly not the injury-riddled Corry Beavers that scalped 20-6 Friday evening.

I've got news for Coach Dave Stewart's Knights: Oil City's about to descend upon them with all the brute force of a falling angle iron.

MEADVILLE 16, CORRY 6

Let's give the Bulldogs their first victory of the year. They deserve it. After a couple of close losses, and a thumping Friday evening by Titusville, Meadville should rattle the inexperienced backfield of the Beavers.

Ten points is a good enough margin. Remember, the Bulldogs aren't known for their offensive prowess.

GROVE CITY 12, GREENVILLE 8

This is a big rivalry, and anything, I am sure, can happen. The Eagles have won three of their four games, with the most recent being a 14-0 whitewashing of Hickory's Hornets.

Greenville is just lifting itself to its feet after a devastating Warren loss two weeks ago by edging Greenville, 8-6.

TOWNSVILLE 13, SAEGERTOWN 7

Quarterback Rahn Hill is the key in this game for the Townville Eagles. Out with an injury and seeing limited action, Hill's departure has weakened Townville to the point where it has become vulnerable, something that Coach Dave Hilbert's teams rarely are.

If Hill returns to the starting lineup, give the Eagles a better-than-even chance over the up-and-down Panthers.

Bonnie Wolfe Cops Football Contest

Four wrong was as close as they came in last week's third installment of the Times-Mirror and Observer football contest, but 11 entrants hit that number, forcing a resort to the tie-breaker to determine the winners. Ironically, the New Orleans-Houston tiebreaker ended in a 13-13 deadlock, but the numerical values were still valid in determining a point differential.

Closest to the actual figure was Bonnie Wolfe, 40, of 506 Buchanan st. in Warren, whose 17-10 prediction was an aggregate seven points away. Right behind at 12 points off was Shirley Siggins of 12 Conewango ave. in Warren.

Wolfe's entry, good for the $25 first prize, erred in picking the Miami-New York Jets pro game, the Duke upset of Stanford in the college ranks, the Oil City win over Warren and the Randolph upset of Eisenhower in the scholastic section. Siggins missed the Sheffield win over Allegany, Randolph-East Mead's win over Conneaut Valley, and the Duke-Stanford contest as well as the Eisenhower game. She will receive $15.

Steven Sundberg, 11, of 3 Cobham Park rd. in Warren took third place, good for the first of four $10 prizes, with a 14-point differential. Michael F. Cashmere of 1812 Tollgate road in Sheffield and Buster Allen, 12, of R.D. 2, Russell, tied for fourth place at a 15-point differential, while Juna Lake of faraway Harrisburg was 16 points off on the tie-breaker to claim the final $10 prize.

All winners will receive their checks in the mail.

Coming close, but missing out on the tie-breaker, were Louise McClelland and Lee Andring of Marienville, Scott Morris of Youngsville, John Walters of Warren and Richard Cowan of Sheffield.

The most-missed entry was the Oil City win over Warren, with Sheffield's win and Eisenhower's loss coming in a close second and the Johnsonburg loss to Kane also fooling over half the people.

Judges remind entrants that mechanical copies are not acceptable; hand-drawn facsimiles or entry blanks from the newspaper are the only legal entry blanks. And again this week, several entries arrived postmarked past the Thursday midnight deadline, invalidating them.

Scores of last week's games, with the percentage of correct selections, are:

NBA Preview: If Jabbar Can See, Bucks Can Win

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer

Kareem Jabbar, Milwaukee's towering center who was a pain in the neck to the remaining teams in the National Basketball Association last season, now is suffering from a pain in the eye—and the Bucks hope that he can see his way clear again and lead them to a second straight league championship.

The 7-2 Jabbar, formerly known as Lew Alcindor, topped the league in scoring with a 31.7 average, was fourth in rebounds, second in field goal percentage and an overwhelming winner of the NBA's Most Valuable Player Award.

His awesome performance paced the Bucks to the Midwest Division championship, the Western Conference title and their first league crown, in only their third year of existence. They climaxed their season with a four-game sweep over the injury-riddled Baltimore Bullets.

En route, Milwaukee compiled an amazing 66-16 mark, including a record 20-game winning streak and became the first club to shoot over .500 from the field for an entire season.

This season, which begins Oct. 12, the Bucks will have the same lineup that carried them to the title last season. The 7-2

Jabbar, who injured his left eye in an exhibition game against Seattle on Oct. 2, again should be the top center in the league, provided the swelling and pain in his eye has not seriously affected his vision.

His supporting cast is led by Oscar Robertson, whose arrival from Cincinnati last season provided the Bucks with the steady floor leader they needed. Milwaukee's other starters included Bob Dan-dridge and Greg Smith at forwards and Jon McGlocklin at guard.

The Midwest, the only division without an expansion team last season, produced four clubs with over .500 records. Chicago, under Coach of the Year Dick Motta, came on strong late in the season and beat Phoenix and Detroit for the second playoff spot. The Bulls, already with two topflight forwards in Bob Love and Chet Walker have added 6-8½ Howard Porter, the Most Valuable Player in last season's NCAA tournament.

Phoenix, which did not make the playoffs despite recording the fourth best record in the NBA last season, will again be led by 20-point scorers Dick Van Arsdale and Connie Hawkins.

Detroit, winner of its first nine games in the 1970-71 campaign but a less than .500 team the rest of the way, retains its standout guard tandem of Dave Bing and Jimmy Walker. But the Pistons are banking on a big year from 6-11 Bob Lanier, who was slowed last season by a knee operation.

The Los Angeles Lakers, defending Pacific Division champions, have a new coach in Bill Sharman, who led Utah to the American Basketball Association championship last season, and their three aging stars—Wilt Chamberlain, Jerry West and Elgin Baylor—together again.

league, with ex-Olympic and ABA star Spencer Haywood starting his first full season and center Bob Rule returning after surgery on his Achilles tendon.

All-American Sidney Wicks of UCLA's national champions and No. 2 draft pick Charley Yelverton from Fordham join Geoff Petrie, the seventh rookie in NBA history to score more than 2,000 points in his first season, at Portland.

In the Eastern Conference, New York's defense-minded Knicks are hoping to regain the league title they lost last season. Willis Reed, recovered from knee surgery, and rugged Jerry Lucas, acquired from the Warriors, are the key men.

Veterans Billy Cunningham, Archie Clark and Hal Greer are Philadelphia's major hopes to unseat the Knicks as Atlantic Division champions, while John Havlicek leads a young Boston club that is seeking to regain the glory it had in winning 11 NBA titles from 1957 through 1969.

Buffalo, in its second season, hopes for improvement because of 7-1 rookie Elmore Smith, plus Walt Hazzard and Jerry Chambers, obtained from Atlanta.

Baltimore is going with an injury-plagued, veteran starting team in Wes Unseld, Gus Johnson, Earl Monroe, Kevin Loughery and Jack Marin.

Atlanta, runner-up to the bullets in the Central Division, has two tremendous scorers in backcourt in Lou Hudson and Pete Maravich and a valuable addition up front in Don May, a 20-point marksman.

Ken Durrett, the No. 1 draft pick from LaSalle, could be the spark Cincinnati needs to reach the playoffs. Cleveland, the team with the worst record in the league last season, was counting heavily on Notre Dame All-American and Player of the Year Austin Carr, but he will be sidelined several weeks with a broken bone in his foot.

MC CLINTOCK'S DIVISION WINNERS

Despite a Tuesday loss, these McClintock players secured a division title in the National Tabbby Football Conference this season. They are coached by Rich Collins, top left, and will meet Pleasant Township to determine the Conference champion as soon as the makeup portion of the schedule is completed. (Photo by Dorriem)

PINSON GOES IN TRADE

Alex Johnson Goes To Cleveland

ANAHEIM (AP) — The California Angels traded their problem player Alex Johnson to the Cleveland Indians Tuesday, the Indians taking an attitude of letting bygones be bygones.

"We're not looking back, we're not looking back, we're not looking back," said Cleveland President Gabe Paul in acquiring the 1970 American League batting champion who was suspended by the Angels last June for failure to hustle.

Johnson and catcher Jerry Moses, who late in the season voiced discontent with the Angels, went to Cleveland in exchange for outfielders Vada Pinson, who battled with the Indians' management; and Frank Baker plus right-handed pitcher Alan Foster.

Pinson, 33, a veteran of 13 major league seasons, had caused problems at Cleveland, claiming the Indians failed to live up to salary promises for 1971.

The Angels had to rid themselves of Johnson. He was suspended without pay from his $55,000-a-year job last June 26, having been fined 29 times in the early season for not giving 100 per cent effort.

A baseball arbitration board ruled the Angels had to pay the $29,000 remaining on the Johnson contract, asserting he should have been put on the disabled list and given psychiatric treatment.

After the ruling, the outfielder said he would play again in 1972 but not with the Angels.

Dick Walsh, the Angels' general manager, commented, "We're very pleased with the trade. We made the best possible deal for Johnson, a better trade than we could have made in June."

"Pinson is an established player, a player of record who will play every day for us in the outfield. Foster is still a prospect, a young starter who had his best year. Baker will be vying for one of the outfield jobs. He's got a chance."

Paul said in Cleveland, "We think that Johnson is a fine athlete and has a very good chance to come back and help our club."

"He has superior talent and we are looking for superior talent."

Paul added: "You don't get things for nothing," referring to the Indians relinquishing Pinson, Baker and Foster.

Johnson hit .329 in winning the league batting title two seasons ago but was at only .260 when he was suspended last June. Moses hit .227 with four home runs and voiced unhappiness publicly that he wasn't used more by Manager Lefty Phillips.

Pinson, the key man coming to the Angels, batted .264, well below his major league average of .291. He had 11 homers, four triples, 23 doubles and stole 23 bases.

Baker, who will be 27 Nov. 1, appeared in 73 games with Cleveland, batting .210 and driving 23 runs. Twelve of his 38 hits were doubles.

Foster, 24, whose career started with the Los Angeles Dodger organization, posted an 8-12 record for the Indians in his only season with the club. He had 26 starts, appeared in 36 games and posted a 4.09 earned-run average.

Hunters' Unpopularity Rising, Says Noted Outdoors Editor

By BOB CLEVER
The editor of Field and Stream magazine has issued a warning to hunters that they are the real endangered species, citing preservationists and motorized vehicles as the greatest danger to the species and the out of doors.

Speaking at the biennial Big Game Awards Dinner of the Pennsylvania Game Commission, held in conjunction with the fall meeting of the Pennsylvania Outdoors Writers Association, Clare Conley warned that there is an increasing campaign being mounted by preservationists to eliminate game species and the sport of hunting. He told the crowd of over 100 persons attending the dinner last Saturday at the Tanglewood Motor Inn, Lake Wallenpaupak that sportsmen must go into the schools to educate the young that population control by hunting is the best management tool.

Conley also recognized that snowmobiles, all terrain vehicles and other products of modern technology pose the next greatest danger to hunting, admitting that his concern is in the face of the large amount of advertising his magazine gets from these industries.

He quoted letters from some of the magazine's 1,800,000 readers, stating that these were representative of the increasing number of anti-hunting and concerned letters that cross his desk.

A Covington, Pa. reader said the hunter is no longer the super sportsman who takes only what he needs. The letter said the hunter is an ignorant bum, a decadent and ardent litter bug, invertebrate cruel, leaving a trail of dead song birds, owls and hawks wherever he walks. The writer said Field and Stream is doing a disservice for depicting the hunter as a sportsman.

A letter from a 14-year old Denver youth expressed concern for the increasing number of movies being shown in his school which depict the hunter as a slaughterer of animals.

"We must ban the image that Walt Disney created many years ago in producing the movie 'Bambi'."

"Television every Sunday continues to show the hunter as the bad man, suggesting that he has no place in society."

"If he is to survive, the hunter must show that he is a sportsman. He must overcome his opponents by educating the general public that the 'thinning of the herd' through hunting is essential to the perpetuation of the species," Conley said.

The young editor of one of the nation's three largest outdoor magazines warned that unless the hunters stand up and be counted, the preservationists, such as those at work in California and New Jersey, will eventually spread their influence to all states.

"These preservationists no longer are 'harmless little old ladies in tennis shoes.' They are powerful and they have ready access to all the media," he said.

Conley said that sportsmen's organizations must act now to reach young people through the schools, through their organizations, churches, youth groups and through every contact possible, to convince people that hunting is the most sound game management tool available.

Conservationists, he said, are making inroads in California by insisting that the shooting of all wildlife be eliminated to protect wildlife resources. They have called the hunter and pollution partners in the destruction of the environment.

"Imagine what would happen in Pennsylvania if the preservationists were successful in having the deer and bear put on the endangered species list. Pennsylvania has some of the finest, if not the finest, hunting in the east and only because hunting has been used as a tool of management," he said.

Conley suggested that the POWA and the Outdoor Writers Association of America mount a campaign in the schools to counteract the bad publicity given hunting by the preservationists. He said that it is only at this level now that we can convince future citizens that there would have been no increase in wildlife in California, in Pennsylvania, or anywhere else, if there had not been hunting.

"Field and Stream has counteracted the 'slob' label given hunters through the Ted Trueblood stories. He represents an appreciation for the sport of hunting, not the kill. Trueblood approaches hunting from the angle that the real pleasure is in being out of doors and enjoying nature. Trueblood says that a hunting trip is not a disaster if the hunter doesn't bring home a kill," Conley said.

"Another area that is very ticklish is the problem being created by snowmobiles, motorcycles, trailbikes and the many motorized products of our modern technology."

"Millions of dollars are being spent on advertising these mechanized vehicles—and a lot of it appears in our magazine."

"But we are running headlong into the problem where technology is eliminating in hunting the element of chance or is at least cutting down that element."

"Nature hasn't hung anything on wildlife to help it combat these technological advances. Perhaps we are making it too easy. I am beginning to wonder if we haven't already gone too far in technological advancement," he said.

Conley said that the snowmobile isn't bad in itself and that in fact for the rider and driver snowmobiling can be fun.

Pleasant Rips McClintock To Capture Tabby Division

Ripping off 26 points to McClintock's 12, Pleasant's Panthers finished their regular Tabby Football League season undefeated and untied Tuesday evening. Despite the loss, McClintock clinched its division when Starbrick lost to South Street, 7-0.

Pleasant, Division A champion, will now play McClintock, Division B winner, to determine the National Tabby Conference winner. That winner will play the American Conference champion in the annual Mini-Bowl. Dates for the playoffs have not yet been set, pending some makeup action in the regular-season schedule. In other Tuesday action, Irvinedale and Lacy played to a 6-6 tie while Lander edged Home Street in an 18-13 contest.

Texas Holds Third Football Poll Slot

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Texas, No. 3 behind Nebraska and Michigan again this week in The Associated Press College football poll, takes on No. 8 Oklahoma in one of two games between ranked teams Saturday.

The Longhorns, who swamped Oregon 35-7 last Saturday, held onto third place with three first place votes and 818 points, just 68 behind Michigan which received five No. 1 votes from a national panel of 55 sports writers and sports broadcasters.

National champion Nebraska, which has been No. 1 since the season began, garnered 43 first place ballots and 1,058 points after blitzing previously unbeaten Utah State 42-6.

Auburn and Colorado received two top votes each to move up one notch to No. 4 and No. 5 respectively. Notre Dame, which had slipped from second to fourth in the previous poll, skidded to seventh despite a 14-2 victory over Michigan State.

The other undefeated teams in the Top Ten are No. 6 Alabama, No. 9 Penn State and No. 10 Georgia. The other Saturday contest between ranked teams pits No. 11 Washington against No. 19 Stanford. Stanford plunged from 10th place last week after losing to Duke 9-3.

now No. 14, while Washington moved up from 15th with a 52-14 trouncing of Illinois.

Southern California, with a 2-2 record after a 33-20 loss to Oklahoma, was dropped from the rankings and was replaced by No. 20 Toledo, (4-0) after squeezing past Ohio 31-28 for its 27th straight victory spanning three seasons. No. 12 Arizona State and No. 18 North Carolina are the only other unbeaten teams in the lower bracket.

Others in the second ten are No. 13 Tennessee, No. 15 Ohio State, No. 16 Louisiana State and No. 17 Arkansas, each with one loss.

The Top Twenty teams, with first place votes in parentheses, season records and total points. Points tabulated on basis of 20 18 16 14 12 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1.

1. Nebraska (43)	4-0	1,058
2. Michigan (5)	4-0	886

BEATY BYLINES

By Judy Gorfida and Sandy Bengtson

Hi! Here we are already in the fifth week of school. Everything is back to normal, and it looks as if we are going to have a very good year at Beaty. October 12th marks the end of the first six weeks. Report cards will be distributed on October 20th, and the following day, October 21st, will be the annual Parents' Night. Everyone looked especially nice on Tuesday, October 5th, as the men from Province Studios were here to take individual pictures. The Beaty football team met its first defeat on September 13th when Franklin outscored the Dragons 16-6. On September 30 the Dragons bounced back and came from behind to beat the Bradford team 14-12.

The Junior Geographers have organized for another year with the following officers: Willy LeMeur, president; Bill Blair, vice president; Peggy Tomasone, secretary; and Clark Whitaker, treasurer. Mr. Eldridge, the advisor, announced the schedule for the year. The members will be selling candy in October, will sponsor a dance in March, and will take a trip to Conneaut Lake Park in the spring.

The English Club met on September 22nd with the following officers presiding: Willy LeMeur, president; Willy Clinger, vice president; Jean Niver, secretary; and Debbie Billow, treasurer. The club will sponsor a bake sale on October 7th and 8th. Also the members will enjoy a tureen dinner on October 7th. The movies of last year's trip to Stratford will be shown after the dinner.

Sixty-seven students were present for the first meeting of the French Club. The elected officers are: Celeste Bertolini, president; Sue Carr, vice president; Liz Wood, secretary; Tom Spear, treasurer. The next meeting will be on Tuesday, October 12th. The officers will furnish the refreshments.

Office girls this year are: Lou Ettinger, Mary Bevevino, Wendy Munch, Sue Hoden, Peggy Ann Brown, Mary Anne Sharp, Judy Gorfida, Mary Downey, and Emily Anderson. The girls in the guidance office are: Debbie Anderson, Connie Bartholemew, Carla Rauschenplat, Chris Clark, Lisa Hodas, Barbara Swanson, and Marilyn Reese.

Our school newspaper, "The Match," was distributed last Friday. Sue Dorn is the editor and she is assisted by Tom Hyatt.

We are proud to have four freshmen boys on the high school cross-country team. They are: Dana Olson, Tom Gay, John Hanna, and Tim Huber. We wish them all good luck.

ONE MAN'S VIEW

Ever Hunt With A Muzzle-Loader?

By Bob Rogge

We went ground hog hunting recently on the newly-mown acres of what is known in the family as The Ranch. For laughs, we took along a .58 caliber muzzle-loading flint lock British Brown Bess musket. For ground hogs, we carried a .22 Hornet.

That Brown Bess is an instrument to end all shooting irons. We picked it up in England several decades ago for the princely sum of four pounds sterling—then equivalent to $11.20. It will shoot anything from a two ounce lead ball to a handful of buckshot or, in extremis, nails, pebbles or a rock of suitable size. When you pull the trigger the hammer drops, the flint strikes sparks into the primer pan that goes fzzzz! and then the whole front end erupts in a loud boom and a big black cloud of smoke. You have to duck under the smoke to see whether you came near the target or brought down a cow two hundred yards at right angles to your line of fire. It isn't the most accurate gun in the world.

All we did to the ground hogs was scare the bejabbers out of them. A handful of buckshot whizzing around your ears must be real exciting to a whistle pig sitting up proudly in the mouth of his den. They sure do the disappearing act fast!

When you miss with that thing, the whole 'hog population has plenty of time to burrow another mile of tunnel while you are re-loading. This is a time-consuming process, to say the least. It's a wonder the British ever won any wars with the Brown Bess. They did lose one war of renown—the American Revolution.

First thing, you pull the hammer back to half cock and blow the rubbish out of the primer pan. Then you pull the ram rod from under the barrel. Then you pour some black powder down the barrel and take the ram rod and shove a small clumb of rag down on top of it. This keeps the powder from spilling out of the barrel while you are trying to raise the gun to your shoulder. It's over five feet long and weighs nine pounds (read tons after two shots!).

If you are lucky with your ammunition, you then take a round lead ball and place it on a greased patch of cloth you have stretched over the muzzle, ball and patch in your left hand, fit the end of the ram rod onto the ball and start shoving. As you push the ram rod down the barrel you walk home. When everything sounds solid you know you have the ball, wads and powder properly packed into the breech end of the barrel.

With all that accomplished, you then put the ram rod back in its groove (if you're in a hurry, you stick it in the ground) and cradle the weapon in your arms while you pour some fine black powder into the primer pan. If you don't spill half a pound of powder you're lucky. After you have handed the powder can to somebody else, all the while keeping your eyes on the primer pan so that you don't tilt the gun and spill everything, you snap down the cover which is supposed to keep out the damp.

You are now ready for another shot. The gun has only a foresight and it is bent. It is best to use a sturdy fence post to support the barrel because the gun is almost impossible to shoot offhand.

By this time, however, the smoke cloud from your previous shot has dissipated to the point where you can see across the pasture and you start looking for ground hogs again.

It is fun, though, even though we never hit a thing except the ground. The patriarch of the family allowed as how he wouldn't have to do much plowing next spring if we fired many rounds out of Bess! She does disturb the pasturage.

(Somebody once took a shot at a crow at about fifty yards with that thing. He had it loaded with buckshot and said the crow never moved a feather while the leaden hail simply stripped all the leaves and twigs off the branch he was on. Never touched the crow, but it is a sure bet he will never again roost on that tree!)

Later that evening, when the shouting and the tumult had died down and the ground hogs had regained their sanity, we nailed two of them, dead center, with two shots from the Hornet.

We're looking for a wagon builder and a wheelwright to make us a carriage for that gun. Properly mounted, it would make a good field piece. But finding flints is a hard job these days.

Man Injured In Plane Crash Near Franklin

FRANKLIN—A Cessna aircraft crash-landed Monday morning on a farm at the top of Pecan Hill just south of Franklin.

Treated in the emergency room of Franklin Hospital was the pilot, John F. Stitt Jr., 17, of McGrann, Pa. He was later admitted suffering from lacerations and a possible fracture of the skull and shoulder.

The small plane made an emergency landing on the old Cannon farm off Route 8 opposite the Polk cutoff in Sandycreek Township.

The plane was discovered about 11:30 a.m. One witness at the crash scene Monday said it appeared the landing gear had been torn away in the emergency landing.

A resident of the area where the mishap occurred went to the plane when she heard her dog barking. She said both doors were open and no one was around the craft.

The crash is being investigated by state police aviation investigator Richard Skillman of the state police at Butler.

State Denies Many Teachers Tried To Get Welfare During The Summer

HARRISBURG (AP) — The state Department of Public Welfare denied Tuesday published reports that large numbers of teachers tried to get on the relief rolls during the summer months.

"As far as we can determine," a spokesman said, "only four teachers were involved. Two received cash assistance and two others applied for it."

He said the incidents occurred in Philadelphia and Allegheny counties.

There are upwards of 100,000 public school teachers in the state.

Richard G. Farrow, commissioner of the department's office of family services, said that a recent department policy had determined that school teachers were ineligible for public assistance. He called the policy "a matter of prevention rather than cure."

"The implication that large numbers of teachers sought cash assistance is not in accordance with the facts," Farrow said. "However, individual teachers did seek information about applying for assistance in several counties and this resulted in a reaffirmation and clarification of eligibility as it affects teachers."

Farrow said the issue centers around whether teachers are employed during the months they are not actually teaching. Some school districts pay monthly for 12 months while others pay for nine or 10 months.

Teachers in the latter group claimed eligibility for welfare on the ground they had no income during the vacation months.

Farrow said that according to the department's policy, applicants must be unemployed or have insufficient income to meet their needs "as established by department standards."

"Teachers who have annual contracts to teach were therefore not unemployed during the vacation period and their income must be computed on an annual basis converted to a monthly amount," said Farrow.

He conceded that individual cases could have been approved in some counties without the issue having been raised. However, Farrow said other counties had raised the issue and sought clarification from Harrisburg.

The most recent issue of the Pennsylvania Bulletin, the official state publication, said in Memorandum 1183:

"The eligibility of school teachers for cash assistance and food stamps during summer months is an increasingly large and widespread problem. Regardless of the method paid, school teachers are on an annual salary contract basis and have recurring income."

Appeals Court Hears Arguments On Guardsmen At Kent State

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The 6th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals heard arguments Tuesday on whether a lower federal court acted correctly in dismissing, without a hearing, an effort to enjoin the state from sending National Guardsmen to quell disturbances such as occurred at Kent State University.

The suit was filed by Craig Morgan, who was president of the Kent State student body when a disturbance May 4, 1970 resulted in the deaths of four students.

U.S. District Court Judge James Connell ruled at Cleveland there was no grounds for such a suit against then Gov. James A. Rhodes and other state officials who sent the guardsmen to the Kent State campus.

Much of the argument in appeals court concerned the lack of a hearing on the issues. Morgan had claimed calling of the guardsmen was unconstitutional and that it could establish a pattern of conduct for the future.

At one point Judge Wade H. McCree told attorneys he felt "the crux" of the case was whether Morgan sought to prove there was a pattern of conduct or whether the Kent State case was a single incident.

If it was a pattern of conduct, he said he felt Morgan should have a chance to prove his claim of unconstitutionality but that if it was an isolated incident he felt dismissal was proper.

Judge Anthony J. Celebrezze, one of three judges hearing the case, asked Sanford Rosen of New York, attorney for Morgan, whether the federal courts should have to be asked for approval to call the National Guard.

He asked "can the federal courts control the militias of this country?"

If that could be done he said courts even could be asked to enjoin President Nixon from sending troops to Viet Nam.

In reply to a question from Judge George Edwards, Rosen said he did not know of any such order ever having been issued before. Judge Edwards also said he felt Morgan might be trying to get the courts to remove powers vested in the governor.

Judge McCree also said Morgan may have been entitled to prove the calling of the guard might have been a pattern for future conduct.

In his argument, Michael Grove, an assistant state attorney-general, said it was "speculative" that a pattern would be established.

The Court of Appeals took the case under advisement.

Five-Day Mine Strike Still Under Negotiation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Union and industry negotiators said Tuesday they are resuming contract talks in the five-day-old strike of 80,000 soft coal miners in more than 20 states.

President W. A. "Tony" Boyle of the United Mine Workers and chief industry negotiator R. Heath Larry are to return to bargaining table after separate meetings with Secretary of Labor J. D. Hodgson.

"I think they are still a hell of a long way apart," said a source close to the negotiations. Larry and Boyle declined comment on the status of the talks or their meetings with Hodgson.

Sources said, however, that both sides are seeking hints of what President Nixon's economic restraints will consist of after the current 90-day wage-price freeze expires Nov. 13.

Uncertainty over the White House economic plans has been cited by both sides as complicating the negotiations.

Meanwhile, the Mine Workers kept its 125-man National Scale and Policy Committee standing by in New York, indicating hope for an agreement. The committee must approve any new contract.

Boyle reported to the committee in New York Monday on the status of the negotiations and reportedly said, "I hope to be back soon."

But sources said they would probably send the committee members home, subject to recall, if there were no settlements in the next few days. The old coal contracts expired Sept. 30.

Boyle has said he is demanding a boost in the current $37 top daily wage to $50, to at least double the current 40-cent-per-ton industry royalty into the union's $113-million Welfare and Retirement Fund, and to win other contract improvements.

The union reportedly is seeking to convince federal officials that increases in the productivity of coal miners over the years justifies a substantial wage increase.

Administration officials have indicated that the productivity of workers will be a major factor in considering wage restraints to go into effect after the freeze.

State Asked To Hire More Black Guards

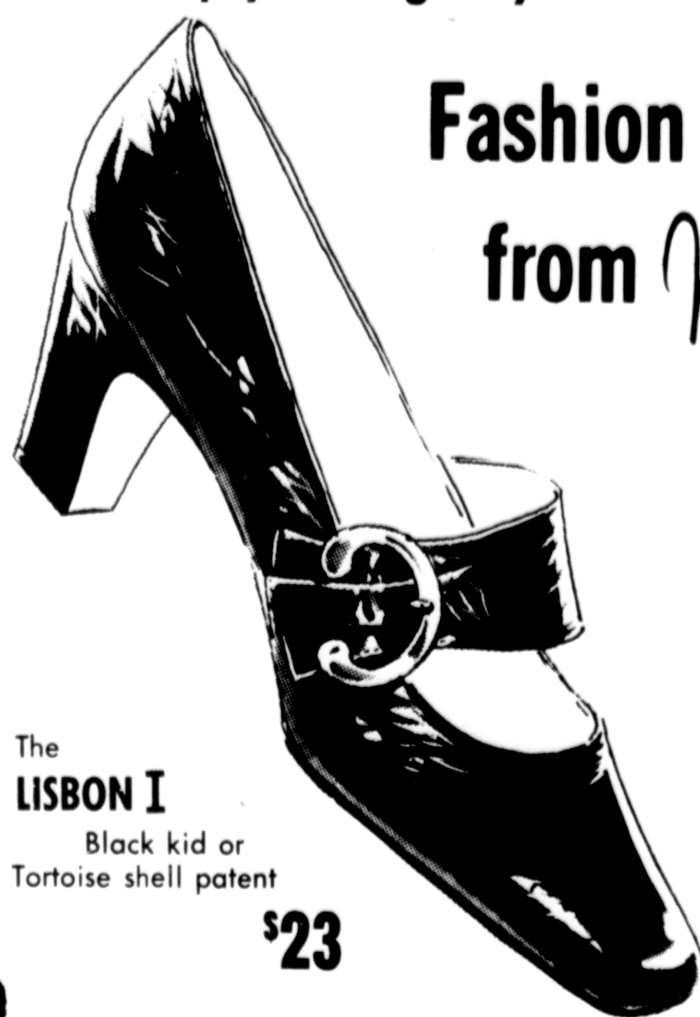

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Shapp administration was asked Tuesday to hire more black guards at the Western State Correctional Institution.

The request was made by the Rev. Donald W. McIlvane, Pittsburgh, representing an organization called the Direct Action Coalition.

Father McIlvane said that about 7 per cent of the guards at the Pittsburgh maximum security prison are black "although the percentage of black inmates is much higher."

INSTRUCTION FOR STUDENTS

The North Warren ambulance visited Market Street School Tuesday to provide safety and first aid instruction for a group of students. Arrangements were made by Gwendolyn Nosel, co-op student teacher and Mrs. Barbara Kent,

Ground Breaking For Chapel At WSH Slated For Friday

A ground-breaking ceremony for the construction of the Inter-Faith Center and Therapeutic Activities Building of Warren State Hospital, will begin at 1 p.m. Friday, Oct. 15. A reception will follow immediately in the Israel

Building. Although since its inception in 1965, when Dr. Arlin A. Dirlam, noted church architect, was in Warren to explain some of the reasons he chose for the design of the Inter-Faith Center, some changes have been made, its purpose remains the same. The center embraces three individual chapels—one for the Catholics, one for the Protestants and one for the Jews. They have been designed to provide proper location for the appointments pertaining to that individual faith.

Inter-Faith Center, Inc., was organized in January of 1965 and many individuals have worked to provide adequate facilities for the work being carried on by the hospital chaplains—at this time in makeshift quarters.

Former Superintendent Robert H. Israel said "Man is a creature of many needs. When mental illness strikes, the individual must call upon all the resources in which he has faith and from which he can receive help. Religion offers such strength in times of confusion and uncertainty. Psychiatry welcomes the basic aid which religion can provide."

Funding for the Inter-Faith Center and Therapeutic Activities Building is supplied in part by individual contributions from the 13-county area served by WSH and by state appropriations made possible through the efforts of Senator Richard C. Frame.

Kane Police Report Camp Burglary

KANE—State police at the Kane substation report that a camp owned by Joseph Faes of Crosby and located in Norwich Township was burglarized recently. Owner of the camp reported the theft of a "power plant" valued at $197.

Borough police reported Monday morning that a rear window had been forced at Quality Woodcraft on Wetmore ave. and $200 taken from a cash register. Police said the place was entered sometime over the weekend between Friday at closing time and until the business opened at 9 a.m. Monday.

Using an unlocked rear door for access, a sneak thief entered a kitchen of a Fraley st. apartment early Sunday evening to get $7.50 in cash from a pocketbook left on a kitchen table.

Mrs. Rose Skok told borough police that she and her mother had gone into another room for 10 minutes to watch television and returned to find the pocketbook missing.

It was the third sneak-thief purse taken here in about two weeks.

Celoron Pair Jailed For Drug Possession

BUSTI, N.Y.—Two Celoron brothers were committed to Chautauque County Jail, Mayville, following arraignment Sunday before Town Justice Ernest Levin on charges of fifth degree possession of dangerous drugs. No bail was set.

David Proestler, 19, and Richard L. Proestler, 17, of 23 Beaver st., Celoron, were arrested at 6:15 a.m. Sunday by Busti officer R.J. Siperak who observed the youths acting in a suspicious manner.

Officer Siperak, assisted by Busti patrolmen Steven Showers and J.D. Dustin, charged the teen-age brothers after reportedly finding a quantity of narcotic pills in their possession.

The brothers also face separate charges of public intoxication by drugs and will be returned to Busti Justice Court at a later date.

Senate Passes Resolution For Graduated Income Tax

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Senate, passed 38-10, Tuesday a resolution calling for a change in the state Constitution to permit graduated taxes at the state and local level.

The measure had been amended earlier in a Senate committee and now returns to the House for a vote on concurrence. If accepted it would be held for the legislature of 1973 and then put to a referendum.

An attempt to restrict the measure to state taxes was defeated.

In the House, legislation extending the requirements of the state's nationally hailed 1945 bituminous coal mining act to all forms of surface mining was released on the floor from committee. Intent of the bill is to prevent land scars and deterioration.

The bill, already passed by the Senate, calls for backfilling to contour in all types of surface mining whether it be coal, limestone, clay or gravel. One key change made by the Mines and Minerals Committee was deletion of a so-called "grandfather clause" written in by the Senate which would have exempted all mining operations in existence at the time the bill goes into law.

Meanwhile, a separate piece of legislation was introduced in the Senate that also pertained to the 1945 mining act — it would prohibit the issuance of permits for mining on state game lands.

Sen. John Stauffer, R-Chester, in trying unsuccessfully to amend the graduated tax resolution on the floor, said that to provide for the enactment of such a tax on the local level as well as the state level would hurt the cities.

He said the city of Philadelphia's 3.5-16 per cent wage tax, if put on a graduated scale, would cause an "outward migration from the city. Furthermore, there would be the possibility of creating tax enclaves in the surrounding area" which would offer a lower tax, he said.

Stauffer also said studies showed him the administration of a graduated tax "is a good deal more costly than that of a flat tax."

In counter remarks, Democratic Majority Leader Thomas F. Lamb, D-Allegheny, said:

"The flat income tax is a very regressive tax... We're very concerned about tax reform at the local level."

The House was to return Wednesday afternoon, while the Senate adjourned until Tuesday.

Court Ruling Favors Boy

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A teenage boy, who says he lives with his grandparents in suburban Dormont so he can care for them, now has court permission to attend school there.

Allegheny County Judge Charles D. McCarthy issued a permanent injunction Monday forcing the Keystone Oaks School District to admit Philip Moses, 14, even though his parents reside in the city of Pittsburgh.

The Keystone School District banned Moses Sept. 13, claiming his stated aim to care for his aging grandparents was only a ruse to enable him to attend school there.

HUD Housing Funds May Still Come To Boro

The Warren County Housing Authority will be able to breathe more easily, according to Warren Borough Planning Assistant Tom Hessley. He revealed Tuesday that HUD funds may still be available to the authority despite the borough's recent failure to come up with a workable program.

At a Citizens' Advisory Committee meeting last week Hessley and Borough Manager Frank Strange both agreed that the defeat of the $39,300 Action Plan by council on September 27 would impede the efforts of the county housing authority when they try to obtain federal funding through HUD.

The housing authority is planning low cost housing for the elderly in the downtown area if HUD cash is made available.

The key to obtaining funding from many agencies, both state and federal, is a "workable program". Hessley claims the borough's chances of obtaining certification is in danger. Certification goes hand in hand with having an approved workable program.

The borough's current certification runs out next spring. Hessley says it is likely Warren will be unable to maintain proper certification standards.

The borough learned Monday, however, that HUD funding no longer depends on the workable program. In a phone conversation with Al Stevens, assistant borough manager, HUD chief Jim Getzy stated that a recent change in policy makes HUD funds available to non-certified communities as well as certified ones when it comes to housing for the elderly.

Getzy agreed that demolition grants and neighborhood development grants will be out of the communities grasp without a workable plan.

Hessley explained that recertification will be hard to acquire because "we still haven't accomplished what we promised to do last time we applied."

He cited specifically the promise to shape up the central business district (CBD) and create a 6-year implementation plan—both key sections in the dead Action Plan proposal.

"About all we've really accomplished during this certification period is to update the zoning ordinance," he said.

Special Training Slated For Retarded Children

The Warren County Association for Retarded Children is starting a pre-school class and sheltered workshop for retarded children. The programs will include retarded children in the county who are not eligible for public school classes or who have been excluded from school.

Tim Finnegan of Erie will be workshop director. He is presently screening clients and businesses from which he will secure contracts for work. The trainable mentally retarded person, age 16 or over will qualify for this program. As with pre-school children, this will also include multiple handicapped individuals. Location for the workshop has not yet been determined.

Mrs. Carolyn Shaffer will be teaching the pre-school class to be held five days a week from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. In order to qualify for this program, the children must be diagnosed mentally retarded, brain damaged or may have multiple handicaps. The age range is from three to eight years or older depending on the child.

FINNEGAN

Anyone interested in the pre-school class for retarded children or the sheltered workshop, may contact Mrs. Shaffer at 726-1157 or Warren County Association for Retarded Children, 211 Market st.

United Fund Reports 77% Of Goal Reached

The United Fund campaign for $198,799 struck an encouraging, although inconclusive, note Tuesday afternoon when reports reached $152,756 or 77 per cent of goal. H.T. Bright, campaign general chairman, said it was encouraging that the current total is running ahead of last year's timetable when 71 per cent of goal was in hand on the same date.

However, he said, none of the seven soliciting divisions has yet reached its quota and the final outcome of the 1971 appeal is still in doubt. Another report day has been set for Tuesday, October 12 when it is hoped that 85 per cent of the goal will be achieved.

Yesterday, the industrial division, under chairman Ralph Grimm which seeks $124,650, reported receipts of $106,580. The special gifts division, with a quota of $27,500 was reported at $26,539 by division chairman W.F. Crossett.

Charles Housel, commercial chairman, turned in gifts and pledges of $6,335 toward a division quota of $10,200. A first report from Jack Hampson, professional chairman, showed this division has $3,956 toward its objective of $7,550.

Public service, also making its first report, turned in $1,582 but Andrew Donick, division chairman, said that solicitation of Warren County school personnel and State Hospital employees has not yet begun.

The residential and county divisions are still counting returns from the mail appeal. Richard Huber, reporting for residential, turned in $4,665 toward a quota of $5,950. Ursula Johnson, county chairman, tallied $3,009 against an objective of $6,200.

With only two weeks remaining in the campaign, chairman Bright urged all volunteers and company chairmen to complete their work and turn in results before next Tuesday afternoon.

Hearings Set On Income Tax Exemptions

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Senate Finance Committee plans to set public hearing dates shortly in Harrisburg, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh on whether low-income families should be exempted from the state's new 2.3 per cent flat income tax.

Sen. Henry J. Cianfrani, D-Philadelphia, committee chairman, made the announcement Tuesday, adding, "It is our hope that after the hearings are completed, we will draft and approve meaningful legislation to relieve the low-income earners of this Commonwealth of their income tax burden."

Mead Twp. Police Arrest Pgh. Man

A Pittsburgh man was arrested by Mead Twp. police Monday night, charged, and remanded to the county jail.

Arrested was Ray Oakes of 1721 Mt. Joseph st., Pittsburgh, who was charged with assault with intent to kill after he allegedly drew a knife on Edward Robinson of 8465 Morganville rd., Stafford, N.Y. at Cole's Motel at about 9:15 p.m.

According to Chief McWilliams' report, Robinson said two men had taken his suitcase from the motel and as he tried to stop them, one man drew a knife and both men had chased him around the parking lot in front of the motel.

Oakes was remanded to Warren County jail in lieu of bail.

Woman's Club President Honored at Tea

MRS. LLOYD CLEVELAND

Mrs. Lloyd Cleveland, president of the Woman's Club of Warren, was honored at the annual President's Day Tea, held at the Woman's Club

Monday, Oct. 4
All guests were greeted by Mrs. A. J. Lucia, chairman of the entertainment committee. She also introduced Mr. and Mrs. Bucy, the new club managers.

Mrs. Meyer Berenfield, chairman of the Music Department, presented Mrs. John Wendell and Mrs. Jacob Levinson, duo pianists, who played "Sicilienne" by Bach and "Larghetto" from the Concerto in D Minor by Pauline. They also played "Billy the Kid" by Aaron Copland.

Tea was served in the dining room with Mrs. James Potter, first vice-president and Mrs. Harold A. Johnson, second vice president, serving.

A bouquet of fall flowers which centered the tea table was taken to Miss Frances Schimmelfeng, a charter member who is ill.

Keep Your Hunter Healthy

In autumn the ghost of Nimrod, the mighty hunter, stirs in many a husband's heart. Off he will go to the forest with visions of filling the larder with game. Back he will come, perhaps empty-handed, but certainly to fill your sympathetic ears with tales of muscle strains, cuts, bruises and various other misfortunes that befell him.

The wife who early recognizes her husband's "hunting syndrome" can offset many of these problems if she would follow this five-point plan: first, insist that your husband go for a medical checkup; second, have him get an eye checkup; third, recommend some pre-conditioning exercises; fourth, provide him with an adequate medical kit; fifth, arrange for him to spend an afternoon before the hunt at a local rifle range.

The medical checkup should include, of course, a cardiogram, particularly if he is over 40. It will also provide him with guidelines for the pre-conditioning exercises necessary to develop strength and endurance for "the chase."

In addition to confirming that his eyesight is sound, your eye doctor should check whether your husband is "right-eyed" or "left-eyed." Briefly, in right-handed persons, the left side of the brain is dominant because the nerve fibers from the left cerebral hemisphere cross over to the opposite side at the base of the brain. Since the crossover is not complete, many of us have varying degrees of ambidexterity.

A simple "home" test can be done by pointing your finger at an object across the room -- keeping both eyes open. With the finger still pointing at the object, close the right eye only. If you are "left-eyed" the finger will stay on the object; if you are "right-eyed" it will move to the right of the object. In crowded hunting areas, the difference could be crucial.

Pre-conditioning exercises should be planned with two goals in mind: strength and endurance. A regime of push-ups, toe-touching, deep-knee bends and sit-ups is excellent -- as is jogging or running in place. Bear in mind that repeating an exercise many times with a light load will increase endurance, whereas fewer repetitions with a heavier load produce muscular strength.

A good basic medical kit should have a first-aid manual; elastic bandages or surgical tape for binding sprains and strains; an antiseptic for minor cuts; a tube of petroleum jelly for burns and chapped lips; gauze roller bandage; an antacid to relieve stomach distress brought on by his own cooking; aspirin to relieve headaches and aching muscles; and an insect repellent.

Also include tweezers, a small scissors, a few sterile bandage compresses, and a shrill whistle! The whistle should be used, together with preplanned signals, when your husband, the hunter, gets separated from his party.

Experienced hunters regularly practice at local ranges or clubs before undertaking a hunt -- and strongly recommend that weekend hunters do likewise.

Of course, this five-point program doesn't guarantee your Nimrod will come home laden with bear. But it will ease your anxieties about his preparedness and, as a result, send your hunter forth in high spirits. And, who knows, this time he may actually come home with something more in the bag than dirty laundry!

Nursery for Handicapped Children In Operation at Warren YWCA

"IT'S ME, IT'S ME" SAYS TRACY VALONE
when her name is called by Mrs. Bunce (photo - Betz)

By JO BETZ

A new nursery school, designed specifically for the handicapped child, has begun classes twice a week at the YWCA Activities Building.

In a room painted with bright green walls, with white curtains fluttering at the sunshine-filled windows, four children began learning how to live with each other Monday.

Three of the children are handicapped, one is a normal 3½-year-old, the daughter of the assistant teacher.

Mrs. Garry (Gizella) Bunce, is the teacher of the group, assisted by Mrs. Daniel (Wilma) Porter.

Mrs. Bunce said Monday, "We hope to be able to take the children who cannot fit into another nursery group. We are trying to get to the kids who can't get out to socialize with other kids their age."

Mrs. Bunce is a Registered Nurse, with a degree in nursing education. She has also had one semester's college work in nursery school training.

She got involved with the handicapped pre-school situation because she too has a handicapped child. "My child is not in our group yet," she said, but is in the Montessori nursery group already set up here. As soon as I get my feet on the ground here, my child will also join this group."

The nursery group is not just for socializing, Mrs. Bunce insisted. "We are trying to teach the children coordination, which is especially necessary for the cerebral palsied child," she said. "We are trying to get them to use their thumb and first two fingers so by the time they go to a regular school, they will be able to hold a pencil. "We are trying to teach them everyday things," she continued. "Things like the weather, letters, the alphabet, colors and matching. We want them to feel the different texture of things and to work with their senses."

Although the school room has some toys and chairs, the nursery school has a need for more equipment, Mrs. Bunce said. "We especially need chairs with arms, so the children won't fall out of them," she said. "We need a double easel and some paints so they can express themselves creatively."

Parents of the children attending the school pay $10 per month for the service, with the $4 membership to the YWCA being picked up by the Crippled Children's Committee. The money paid is for basic supplies needed by the teachers.

Although the group is just beginning, Mrs. Bunce is hoping for a larger number of students. "If there is any child in the area who can't see, or who has difficulty in seeing, they would be welcome to the group."

The teachers hope to keep the age limits from 3 to 5, but they have already deviated from the limits. The children now enrolled are from 2½ years to six years old.

"We're flexible," Mrs. Bunce explained.

The apparent aim of the new nursery school is not only social acceptance. "We want this school to be a learning situation as well as a social situation," Mrs. Bunce said. "The children not only have to learn how to get along with other people, they have to learn to fail occasionally, and to accept that failure. No one ever does everything properly, and if they learn only that, we feel we have done something."

The school meets from 9 to 11 a.m. Mondays and Fridays at the YWCA. More information on the program is available from Mrs. Bunce or Ellen Thomas, Executive Director.

Mrs. Raymond (Pearl) Gilmore was honored with a surprise party Saturday evening in celebration of her birthday anniversary. The family affair was held at the Gilmore home, 6 N. State st., North Warren, and was given by her daughter, Mrs. Alice Scheckler. Thirty-three guests were present from Frewsburg, N. Y.; Nelsonville, Ohio; Russell, Edinboro, Williamsport and Warren, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. John M. Culbertson of 315 Poplar st., returned recently from a motor trip to Seminole, Okla., where they visited for two weeks at the home of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Chester (Virginia) Parker. They were accompanied by another sister, Miss Edna Whan.

John Kujava from Denver, Colo., has been visiting at the home of his brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Kujava of 23 Van Etna Ave., in Sheffield. He also visited another brother, Joseph, and a sister, Mrs. Harley Pierson.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Retterer III were in Warren, Ohio the past weekend, where he participated in the Nelson & Wedges Road Racing event. They were accompanied by Shelley Wedlock and Newell Larson. Fred drives a Formula V and is a national driver associated with the Western New York region of S.C.C.A.

Mrs. Laura Morris and Mrs. Ethel Pierson were in Meadville last Thursday visiting Mrs. Frank Garber who is a patient in Meadville Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul W. Yagge of the Holly Apartments, and his brother, Peter from Sugar Grove, have returned from three weeks in Switzerland visiting cousins, one each in the towns of Berne, Interlaken, Meiringen, Hubkern, and Giesholtz. They flew Air Canada from Toronto to Zurich with one stopover in Montreal. The group visited Breinzweiler, the birthplace of their mother, and in Innerkirchen where their father was born. We understand the cousins are all related on the mother's side, with the family name, Amacher.

Ann Landers

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband and I have been happily married for 16 years. A few weeks ago my husband blurted out something that has made me so miserable I can barely stand it. Out of a clear blue sky he said he had a confession to make. It seems that in 1958 when we lived in a dorm for married college students he met another married gal who also lived in our dorms—in, of all places, the supermarket. She had a large bag of groceries and he offered to drive her back to the dorm since she had no car. On an impulse they drove to the woods and had a 15-minute affair. He said he became physically ill afterward, (guilt, of course) and told her they must never do such a thing again. They never did.

The girl and her husband live 2,000 miles away but we have kept in touch through letters, cards and school reunions. I am so crushed by the knowledge that my husband did such a rotten thing to me that I want to telephone her and let her know I am now in possession of the facts.

My husband would prefer that I not call. We have agreed to abide by your decision.—YUBA CITY

DEAR YU: If you place the call you will accomplish the following:

- Make your husband look like a loose-lipped jerk.
- Make yourself look like an insecure, addle-brained fool.
- Fix it so you will never again be comfortable in the girl's presence.
- Add about $10 to your phone bill. Is it worth it?

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I have never had the need to write to you before but I need you now. This letter is about neighbors. Ann, I moved into this lovely apartment several months ago and I love it. I DON'T want to move, but I might have to if people don't leave me alone.

The woman across the hall knocked on my door seven times last week. Not only is she a borrower, but she is mad at her psychiatrist and using me as a substitute. I told her I am not qualified, but she says, "All you have to do is listen. That's all he did and HE charged me $35 an hour."

The couple next door drink and they fight every night. The woman usually winds up here with a towel over her mouth or a piece of meat on her eye. Her husband then joins her, and they continue the fight in my living room. I don't need this. Then there's a man who lost his wife last year and he shows up at my door with a needle and thread (he can't thread it), or a recipe he can't understand. He is nice but a terrible pest.

Please tell me what to do! I am a prisoner in my own home.—OAKLAND

DEAR OAK: Have a one-way peephole put in your door. You can see out, but no one can see in. This device will enable you to decide whether or not you want to open your door. Even if your radio or TV is on, and the party knows you are at home, you are under no obligation to answer the door if you don't feel like it.

Needlework Guild Plans Ingathering

Thirteen directors of the Needlework Guild met at the First Presbyterian Church Sept. 29 to make plans for the solicitation and gathering of new clothing for distribution in Warren County.

The seven agencies benefiting from the solicitations include the State Health Center, the Pediatrics Department of Warren General Hospital, the Warren County Child Welfare Service, the Volunteer Services of Warren State Hospital, the Warren Relief Association, the Head Start Service, and the Warren Visiting Nurse Service. Mrs. Frank Foster, State Health Center, told the directors boy's clothing was needed in sizes from birth to size eight. Especially needed are undershirts, long pants, T-shirts, socks, shorts, pajamas, mittens, sweaters, jackets, caps, and any type of baby clothes.

Girls clothing needed includes, in sizes birth to size eight, panties, undershirts, slips, dresses, sweaters, skirts, pajamas, mittens, caps, knee socks, leotards, diapers, and other types of baby clothing. Mrs. Foster also stated the need for money to purchase boots and shoes for children.

Representing the Pediatrics Department of Warren General Hospital, Mrs. Claire Schnell requested bibs without plastic lining, undershirts in sizes 4 and 6, sleepers with feet in sizes 1 and 2, and washable slippers.

Miss Zerbe of the Warren County Child Welfare Service would like to receive layettes for newborn babies, girls' panties size 10; girls' dresses sized 3, 5, 8, and 9; training pants for children two or three

LWV To Meet

The Community's Involvement in the Problems of Youth is the topic for the season's opening meeting of the League of Women Voters, Thursday morning at 9:30 a.m. at the YWCA.

A report on existing problems with youth will be given as seen by the police, the mayor, the schools and the probation officer.

Mrs. Robert Hedrick, Area-Development Chairman, is to be at the Unit meeting, to alert members to the necessity of writing Warren councilmen to urge them to reconsider their reversal vote and support the Action Plan.

There will be baby-sitting provided on Thursday morning at the YWCA.

Altar-Rosary Soc. Plans Dinner

The Holy Redeemer Altar and Rosary Society is to hold its first meeting of the fall season Thursday, Oct. 7 at 6:30 p.m. in Bishop Wheelon Hall.

A tureen dinner will be served following installation of new officers. Members are asked to bring a tureen and table service. Meat and coffee is to be furnished by the committee.

All women of the parish have been invited to attend.

The risk of mid-air collisions will be reduced during the seventies through use of communications satellites for air traffic control.

years old; snow suits sized 2, 3, and 4; boys' slacks sized 4 to 12; mittens of all sizes; summer or winter clothing for boys or girls sized 2 to 5; boys' T-shirts and socks for all ages; girls' T-shirts, socks, and leotards for all ages; winter jackets for boys or girls in toddler sizes to teenage sizes; towels, blankets, sheets, and used mattresses. Mrs. John C. Urbaitis, coordinator of Volunteer Services at Warren State Hospital, announced the patients need women's cotton dresses, especially in large sizes; nylons and panty hose; brassieres, slips, house coats, and sweaters; men's washable shirts, socks, and sweaters. Mrs. Urbaitis said she also needs gifts of money to buy shoes. Cloth by the yard and yarn could be put to good use in making dresses and sweaters, she said.

Representing the Warren Relief Association, Mrs. Harold Nelson reported a need for girls' dresses sized 6 to 12, panties sized 6 to 12, blouses sized 6 to 12, and mittens. Boys' needs include socks and mittens in all sizes, pants sized 6, 7, and 8; briefs sized 6, 8, and 10; and pajamas sized 6 and 10. The Relief Association would appreciate receiving training pants, diapers and pajamas for infants.

Miss Sue Collins, representing Head Start Service, requested jackets, sweaters, slacks, and socks for boys in sizes 4, 5, and 6; dresses, warm hats, and mittens for girls in sizes 4, 5, and 6.

Mrs. Mary Dickerson of the Warren Visiting Nurse Service requested bed sheets, extra long flannel sheet blankets, and flannel nightgowns of large sizes.

Mrs. James Potter, president of the Needlework Guild, announced the annual ingathering is to take place Friday, Oct. 29, in Fellowship Hall of the First Presbyterian Church. The business meeting is scheduled for 1:30 p.m.

To allow time for preparation before the ingathering, directors are urged to contact each contributor early. Directors would appreciate all contributions to be delivered two or three days before the ingathering.

Donors are requested not to leave items at the church, but are requested to bring contributions to the YWCA, plainly marked with the names of the donor and the director who will receive the article.

As in past years, all donated items must be new, and donors are asked to purchase two of each item donated. The items may be of different colors, but should be the same item in the same size.

The various agencies are asked to claim all contributions before 3 p.m. on Oct. 29.

Columnist Jack Anderson Gets Own Television Show

WASHINGTON—Jack Anderson, who has more readers than any other Washington columnist, is on his way to doubling his audience. He has gone on national television five times a week. This is in addition to his syndicated column that is published in nearly 700 newspapers.

Jack Anderson's daily show is syndicated. It is a two-and-a-half-minute segment designed to be a part of local news programs. One television station incorporates it five times a day in its news shows.

Anderson's television show, like his column, discloses the inside story of government and politics, usually exposing wrongdoing in high places. He has caused the defeat of a dozen Congressmen and his stories have sent half that number, and many other malefactors, to prison.

His television shows do not duplicate his newspaper revelations. They will often supplement them. The visual medium will permit Anderson to display confidential files he has obtained, incriminating letters and other evidence that can rarely be depicted in his column.

His television show is a product of NANA Broadcasting Service Inc., is recorded in Metromedia studios in Washington, and is distributed by Steve Krantz Productions, 6725 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood 90028. Taping is under the guidance of Ed Turner, chief of Metromedia television news.

Including all Metromedia TV stations, the Jack Anderson reports are being used in Washington, New York, Buffalo, Rochester, Miami, Tampa, Oklahoma City, Portland, Ore., Houston, Atlanta, Sacramento, and many other cities. The Steve Krantz organization predicts they will soon be in all major markets.

Turner said, "In putting news shows together, most stations draw from the same material. At Metromedia, we want to offer our audience something different, something other stations do not have. We think the best celebrity for this fare is Jack Anderson."

"He is a muckraker in the best sense of the word. He has his own sources and resources and a reputation that constantly opens up other sources."

"We carry other commentators, but they are mostly political. Anderson covers the entire field of human endeavor and human skulduggery. "We have tough competition with the big networks and we try to compete by being better and by being different. Anderson strengthens us in competition. Our 10 p.m. news roundup on which Anderson's show is a segment has the highest audience rating in the capital. That reflects our approach to the news and the pull of Jack Anderson."

Ted Cott, chief of the NANA Broadcasting, said, "Jack Anderson adds real depth and peripheral vision to television news. He offers the important quality of diversity."

"Television news can't be static and Jack Anderson offers the medium just what it seeks today: dynamic action in a news field that television so far has barely touched."

Cott is a former vice president and general manager of NBC. He has won four Emmy Awards, a Peabody award, a DuPont award and most other Awards for outstanding program development. He originated the "Tonight" show, "Night Beat," "The Play of the Week" and many other hit shows.

And now, "The Jack Anderson Show."

STARTS TODAY

Bradford Man
Arrested
For Hit-Run
DUBOIS - A Bradford man was arrested Saturday by city police for hit and run involving personal injuries to pedestrians.
Donald Edward Johnson, W. Washington st., Bradford, was charged with hit and run in connection with the accident early Sunday morning, Sept. 26, in which Alderman Howard Hunter, 711 Munro st. and James Marano, 510 Locust st. were hit by an auto on W. Long ave. here.
The auto failed to stop, police said. Hunter and Marano were treated at the DuBois Hospital after the mishap.
Johnson is also being charged with another hit and run accident and driving without a license. Chief of Police Hugh E. Dougherty said. Details of the other hit and run accident were not given.
In his arraignment before District Magistrate Wesley J. Read, DuBois, Johnson posted $1,000 bail for a hearing at a later date.
Alderman Hunter and Marano were standing beside a parked car on W. Long ave. when a hit and run car, traveling west, hit the two men, knocking them under the parked car and continued on, police said.

Police Chief
Gets A Ticket
WINDBER, Pa. (AP) - Police Chief Andrew Furmanchik paid $25 and court costs before a magistrate Monday after being cited by one of his own police officers for failing to heed the flashing red lights of a stopped schoolbus.
Furmanchik, according to the charge, ignored the signals and drove his police cruiser around a stopped bus.
The bus driver, off duty police lieutenant Thomas Snyder, promptly wrote his boss a ticket.

Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: Seven of Careful analysis of his prospects by South, the declarer at three no trump uncovered a line of play that could not fail on the deal.

West opened the seven of hearts and East's jack dislodged declarer's king. South could count six top tricks—two spades, two hearts and one each in diamonds and clubs. If he tries the diamond finesse and it succeeds, he is home, however if it loses—a heart return will dislodge declarer's remaining stopper in that suit. The fate of the contract now hinges on the club finesse, for if West has the king and a five card heart suit, he can cash enough tricks to defeat South.

Declarer observed that he could improve his chances by playing clubs first, for even if the defense gets in with the king and dislodges the last heart stopper, the diamond finesse can be taken safely, for if East shows up with the king and has another heart to return—the most that the defense can score is two hearts, one diamond and one club.

At trick two, South led a small club from his hand.
West chose to follow suit with the three, and North's jack won the trick. Now declarer could afford to play the ace and another diamond, for with two club tricks assured, he needed only three in diamonds to bring his total up to nine. East was in with the king, but South took the heart return with the ace and cashed out—three diamonds and two tricks in each of the other suits.

Observe that declarer must lead a club away from the ace at trick two, for if he crosses over to dummy with the king of spades to take a club finesse, when West gets in with the king he can return a spade to drive out North's remaining stopper. Now when South takes a losing diamond finesse, East cashes three spade tricks to defeat the contract.

Your Horoscope

By Frances Drake

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1971

ARIES (March 21 to April 20)—Planetary influences, not wholly friendly, suggest that you strive to avoid misunderstandings, keep budget in line, and protect your work interests with strong endeavor.

TAURUS (April 21 to May 21)—Not a spectacular day, but friendly for educational and individual advancement; also experimenting, straightening out complications, homemaking. Don't force issues.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21)—You can do more, work better, aim for greater attainments now, but you must also have knowledge of your subject, be sure of your methods.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23)—An active period, but you may have to slow down here and there, to review, make notes. Don't ignore the good "little" things in the "Big Push."

LEO (July 24 to August 23)—You could lose out now if you pamper yourself. Don't! Aim at thoroughness; take precautions to avoid clutter and errors that hold back your productivity.

VIRGO (August 24 to September 23)—A big day for big doings. Use your best assets and you can do a great deal to help form new plans, improve and organize effectively. Do not hesitate to take forward steps.

LIBRA (September 24 to October 23)—Favorable aspects but, unless you are on the lookout for flaws, you may miss in a few places. Day calls for adherence to rules, sincere pressing for results, doing your best without strain.

How to Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

ABUSING CHILDREN

(c) 1971 By The Chicago Tribune

Parental mistreatment of infants and children is a sad commentary on our society. Physical abuse and neglect are only part of the story. The children that survive are potential candidates for crippling emotional and psychosomatic illnesses. We know now that many of these tykes become inadequate, helpless and ultimately, inept, cruel parents.

A disturbance of the parent-child relationship is blamed for many disorders in the young, such as severe infantile colic, noninfectious diarrhea, failure to thrive, hyperactivity, mental retardation, asthma, bedwetting, phobias, loss of appetite and vomiting. In most instances, the parents do not realize that their actions are responsible for the child's medical and behavior problems.

As a result, it may do little if any good, to accuse parents of incompetence, ineptitude or failure to assume responsibility for child rearing. According to Dr. F. I. Bishop of Victoria (Australia), one distraught mother said: "I am doing to them precisely what my mother did to me, and I don't want my children to have a mother like that, but I can't help it. Why do I do that?"

Ill-equipped and unfeeling parents usually were deprived, dependent, rejected and hostile when they were youngsters. In other words, the maltreated child often had a mother who was abused. According to Dr. Bishop, when told about this, the mother becomes frustrated and bewildered because she is trying to rear her child to the best of her ability.

Accepting a normally active, highly adaptive and predominantly cheerful child is easy. But it is difficult for emotionally vulnerable mothers to accept a tot who is overly reactive and poorly responsive.

Babies likely to be abused include premature infants, those with congenital abnormalities, twins and SCORPIO (October 24 to November 22)—This day's activities must be handled ON TIME and without misgivings. The faithful worker will win many benefits. Sidetrack all nonessentials.

SAGITTARIUS (November 23 to December 21)—Jupiter's auspicious configuration should instill you with new vigor, help you to establish better relationships. Your big ideas should pay off now.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 20)—Search for a more distinguished, more helpful way to support good measures. You can handle them with greater ease when you depend on your own judgment.

AQUARIUS (January 21 to February 19)—Mild planetary influences. You are just about on your own to decide, act, work out new tactics now. Or is it better to stay with what is in effect. Don't stand still though; improvement is always needed.

PISCES (February 20 to March 20)—Conquer lethargy and determine to get in there with some excellent pitching (at which you are uniquely able), and make a definite, deliberate effort to win.

YOU BORN TODAY are highly imaginative, productive and gregarious; are outstandingly fair-minded and have a fine sense of balance and proportion. You work with others capably, but are inclined to be "bossy" at times. In fact, your tendency to criticize too harshly could alienate persons who, otherwise, could be more helpful in advancing your interests. Try to curb this trait. Highly versatile, you could excel in music, painting, the theater or, along entirely different lines, as inventor, statesman, jurist or physician. Birthdate of: George Westinghouse, Amer. inventor; Jenny Lind, Swedish singer.

illegitimate offspring. Frequent pregnancies and mental illness in the mother also are at the root of many battered babies.

TOMORROW: A New Anesthetic.
Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request.

ERYSIPELAS

A reader writes: Is Erysipelas a venereal disease? As you have probably realized, I have spelled the word phonetically. My joints ache like the devil and I've been running a temperature. The doctor told me the condition is a strep infection of the skin. Should I believe him or is he just trying to spare my feelings by not telling me it is a form of syphilis? Please advise.

REPLY

Erysipelas is a strep infection of the skin and is dangerous unless treated with antibiotics, such as penicillin. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for our leaflet on this condition.

CAN'T EAT CORN

L.N. writes: During the hay fever season, I can't eat corn without developing symptoms. Is my imagination working overtime?

REPLY

No. Some allergic persons can tolerate corn, peaches, and cantaloupe except during the hay fever season. For this reason, these luscious foods have to be avoided during the sneezing season.

STRESS AND COLD SORES

Mr. M. writes: Whenever I go to the dentist I develop cold sores on my lips. Is this due to nerves?

REPLY

Yes, but let's call it stress instead of nerves. Now and then the sores develop because the opening of the mouth was stretched too far.

The Payroll Savings Plan is for people who hate to think about saving.

If you're one of those people who needs to save but doesn't like to think about it, the Payroll Savings Plan is a perfect solution to your problem.

You only have to think about saving once and that's when you join.

After that, money is added to your savings every payday. Whether you remember or not.

While you're thinking about other things, your money will be adding up faster than ever before. Now there's a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds. E Bonds now pay 5 1/2% when held to a maturity of 5 years, 10 months, 4%, the first year. That extra 1/2% is payable as a bonus at maturity. This applies to all bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older bonds.

Start building a nest egg the easy way.

Sign up for the Payroll Savings Plan. Then forget it.

Buy U.S. Savings Bonds through your employer's Payroll Savings Plan. It's the easiest way to save. You'll get a bonus interest rate on all U.S. Savings Bonds. E Bonds now pay 5 1/2% when held to a maturity of 5 years, 10 months, 4%, the first year. That extra 1/2% is payable as a bonus at maturity. This applies to all bonds issued since June 1, 1970... with a comparable improvement for all older bonds.

Take stock in America.
Now Bonds pay a bonus at maturity.

For Boys (12-15)

Who Like ACTION

A Newspaper Route Is The Thing!

• FOR BOYS who crave action and excitement, there's nothing quite like a newspaper route to give them a constructive outlet for their excess energies, and pay them well for their time and talents.

IT'S daily activity that offers an enterprising boy ALL the benefits he seeks from part-time work! Money for personal expenses! Savings for college! Training in modern business methods! Experience in dealing with people! Healthful outdoor exercise and regular habits! Special incentives for boys to excel! Friendly rivalry with other live-wires! Plus helpful advice from newspaper circulation experts.

NO WONDER that our newspaper routes attract the most ambitious boys in each neighborhood. So, if activity like this appeals to your son, advise him to apply for the next route open in your vicinity. Contact our Circulation Department.
